Captain Fred M. Gibson, of Ladders One and Two, was taken to the Lawrence General Hospital with a broken collar bone, as the result of being struck with a fire hook in the smoke-filled building. Several boys were asleep in the attic and were assisted down the burning stairways by firemen, while one man escaped by a ladder raised by the firemen.

The structure was occupied by the families of Joseph P. Reardon and Charles Parker, the former occupying No. 1 Bradford street and the latter No. 3 Bradford street. The refugees, shivering in the icy air, were sheltered at the Franklin House.

The damage was estimated at $5,000.

SCHOOL LOOTER GETS 31-2 YEARS

Charles L. Crockett Posed as Salesman and Won South Boston Bride

Charles L. Crockett of Dorchester, confessed schoolhouse thief, who in the guise of a traveling salesman married a South Boston girl, was today sentenced to State prison by Judge O'Connell at East Cambridge.

Crockett, alias Ralph Wilson, pleaded guilty to eight of nine indictments charging breaking and entering in Middlesex County, and was sentenced to from three to three and a half years.

The police said Crockett, who is 27, confessed to breaking into and stealing goods from high school buildings in Brookline, Cambridge, Arlington, Winchester, Somerville, Medford, Watertown, Everett and Malden. He was sentenced for a break at the Medford High School on December 1. Crockett, who lived at No. 11 Hamlet street, Dorchester, was arrested last January by the Winchester police in a barrage in that town. He at first maintained his innocence, but at length broke down and confessed to assaulting the Winchester High School building, as well as those in Everett and a number of other towns and cities, together with residences. The police recovered a typewriter, said to have been stolen in Everett, and a quantity of other loot, including a saxophone valued at $125 taken from the Brookline High School.

While masquerading as a traveling salesman, Crockett paid ardent court to a young South Boston girl, marrying her on Thanksgiving. The couple lived in Dorchester, the wife being ignorant of her husband's nightly depredations, according to the police.

U. S. ASKS FOR TANK SHIPS

Government Goes After Craft That Were Taken Over by Great Britain

By International News Service.

Washington, March 9.—The United States has sent a note to the reparations commission, requesting that the nine tank steamships whose ownership is claimed by the Standard Oil Company and which were seized from Germany be temporarily allocated to the United States.

The tankers were the subject of a controversy between this government and Great Britain last fall and they were allowed to make one trip under the American flag, but since that time have been held in Boston pending a decision on allocation of the ships.

France has requested that the ships be allocated to that government. The State Department believes that the ownership must be settled through the courts and asks temporary possession of the ships pending a court decision.

POLICE STRIKER SAYS 2 MEN THREATEN HIM

Walter Underhill, one of the striking policemen, today had warrants issued for two former employes of a box factory at Sharon on Lake Castle street charging they had threatened him with assault. Underhill is employed at the box factory as special policeman. Underhill had the two men discharged because they violated the rule forbidding smoking, and says because of this he incurred their enmity. Before going out with the striking policemen in September, Underhill was a member of the automobile squad of Station 9.

STRONG BRITISH FLEET IS ON WAY TO TURKEY

London, March 9.—The fleet which Great Britain is sending into Turkish waters contains some of the most powerful warships in the world. The Queen Elizabeth took part in the ill-starred effort of the allies to force the Dardenelles during the war.

MURDER OF SEVER IS FEARED

Young Wireless Wizard, With Important Invention, Gone Since February 17

Secret agents of foreign powers are suspected of having killed or kidnaped Harold Sever, Harvard's "boy wonder," two years ago, and stolen a priceless wireless invention intended for the United States government.

This became known today when Department of Justice agents invaded Cambridge to investigate Sever's associations there during his schooldays.

Young Sever left the big industrial plant in which he was employed at Valparaiso, Ind., February 17, for Chicago. He had with him all his plans and 200 pounds of apparatus, representing the finished invention. He has not been seen since.

Sever is twenty-two years old. He entered the Harvard Radio School from his home in Pleasant Plain, Ill. During his studies he established a reputation as a master of certain exact sciences.

After finishing the course, the young man was transferred to the naval service and spent nine months aboard ship. Following his discharge from the service he entered the employment of the Valparaiso plant, from which he disappeared.

The boy was normal in every way, His friends say that his disappearance is to be explained only on the theory that he was murdered or spirited away for his invention, which may revolutionize wireless telegraphy if what he claims is true.

These friends believe that only two classes of men would be sufficiently interested to take such chances, agents of unscrupulous manufacturing plants and representatives of rival powers. They lean to the latter theory.

Sims Scores Daniels' "Vacillating Policy"

Washington, March 9.—Admiral Sims declared today before the Senate committee investigating his controversy with Secretary Daniels that the "vacillating policy" of the Navy Department during the early months of the war was responsible for prolonging the war several months.

"Had we been prepared at first the war would have been shortened at least four months," Admiral Sims declared. "As the war cost an average of 8,000 lives a day and millions of dollars, the seriousness of this delay can be realized.

"ENTERED UNPREPARED."

"But we entered the war unprepared, despite two years in which we saw it coming. We were unorganized and the department had no plans. It pursued a vacillating policy during the first few months.

"The war was won by a fortunate combition of circumstances, which it is unwise to count on in the future," Sims said.

The American army during the first year of America's entrance into the war was threatened with, "being all dressed up and no place to go," Sims said.

"Our army ran the risk at all times of being caught in a position of being impotent to obtain victory because of a lack of supplies," he added. "There was the gravest anxiety about enough ships being available to carry supplies as well as troops."

"The American navy's part in the war was one of marked efficiency once we got into it," Sims said. He

LAWSON LOSES TOWN HOUSE

Other Back Bay Property Taken by City; Failed to Pay Taxes

The town house at No. 1 Charlesgate East and other Back Bay property belonging to Thomas W. Lawson are now in possession of the City of Boston, which has secured tax titles to them, owing to the failure of the financier to pay $15,948.50 due in taxes and betterments for the past two years.

No representative of Mr. Lawson or of the Five Cent Savings Bank, which holds heavy mortgages on the property, appeared to redeem it at the second sale, when all properties not previously disposed of were put up for bids.

The city also will have to retain tax titles to about 1,000 other items, many of which are taxed for upwards of $2,000. Nearly 4,000 items, valued at approximately $8,500,000, were offered for sale of their title, and about $85,000 in deferred taxes was realized by the sale. Owners may redeem their property within two years by payment of taxes and costs, plus 8 per cent.

By International News Service.

Washington, March 9.—Raymond A. Corcoran, an American citizen, aged thirty-five, a superintendent of the Santa Gertredis Mining Company, an American concern near Pachuca, Mexico, was murdered by his Mexican clerk on the afternoon of February 28, according to State Department advices today from the American Consul at Nuevo Laredo. The clerk is now under arrest.

Corcoran's clerk had requested leave to visit Mexico City, but his request was refused because of press of business. The clerk then departed without leave, and after a few days returned in an intoxicated condition, it is alleged, and shot Corcoran in the back, the latter dying instantly.

Corcoran's body was brought across the border and buried at Laredo, Tex. His mother, Mrs. Ann O'Malley Sullivan of New London, Wis., was notified of her son's death.

The murdered man served in the war and was honorably discharged.

'PRESIDENT WRONG IN ATTACK ON FRANCE'

Bay State Senator Criticizes Wilson for Reflections in Treaty Letter

By International News Service.

Washington, March 9.—What he termed an "unfair and unfortunate reflection on France," in the President's latest letter to Senator Hitchcock on the treaty, was severely criticised in the Senate this afternoon by Senator Lodge, the Republican leader.

Lodge also declared the President's attitude in the Adriatic dispute to be wrong and said Italy was entitled to possession of Fiume if only as a strategic base to protect her from future invasion.

Senator Lodge declared the President "had reflected unjustly" on the allies in that paragraph of his letter in which he stated that "militaristic ambitions and imperialistic policies are by no means dead, even in the councils of the nations whom we most trust and with whom we most desire to be associated in the tasks of peace."

GREAT DEBT TO FRANCE.

"I do not think that is something that should be said about France, and I regret exceedingly such a reflection upon one of our allies in the great war," Lodge said.

"I feel we owe France a very great debt of gratitude for her part in the war.

"I am sorry the President saw fit to say what he did about France. I regret also the President has seen fit to assume the position he has in the Adriatic dispute.

"That Italy should desire to protect herself by holding the strategic points in the Adriatic is only right under the pact of London. Since when has it become a crime for Italy to protect herself? She has asked for a city as a strategic base with which to protect herself from future war.

"From my point of view it is to be regretted that the President should interfere with a question that does not concern us. We desire to be friendly to Italy and the Jugo-Slavs.

"And I have no feeling against Great Britain. I do not blame her for looking out for herself. I only wish the United States had been looked after as well.

"And there has been a reservation proposed, which would have protected us," Mr. Lodge said, referring to the Johnson reservation.

OWEN FOR RESERVATION.

Senator Owen, Democrat, of Oklahoma announced that he would support the Lodge reservation program, as an expression of the will of the majority of the Senate, rather than stand in the way of ratification.

"I prefer Article X, as it is, but I am prepared, for the sake of passing the treaty and getting the advantages of it, to yield to the demand of a majority of my colleagues in the Senate," Owen said.

U. S. EMPLOYES MAY LOSE ANNUAL BONUS

Federal employes on small salaries who the last two years received annual bonuses of $240, are in danger of losing this the next fiscal year, according to a report from Chicago. The bonuses cannot be paid, says the report, unless Congress appropriates funds for the next fiscal year, which begins July 1. This will not affect postoffice employes, as at first rumored. President Joseph Cavanaugh of the Boston Postoffice Clerks' Association pointed out today that the postal employes received permanent increases in salary by special legislation and expect another by July 1.

U. S. FLOODED WITH COUNTERFEIT MONEY

Washington, March 9.—"A fabulous amount" of counterfeit money is in circulation in the United States and is having a very bad effect on the financial situation here, according to reports from Mexican consuls to the Mexican Foreign Office.

Ramon P. de Negri, Mexican consul-general at New York, reported that the counterfeit money reached the enormous sum of $200,000,000. It is believed here that the reports of the spurious money in that part of a propaganda to minimize the value of American currency in Mexico.

UNITED STATES TO RESUME SOVIET TRADE

Washington, March 9.—President Wilson may approve within the next two weeks a distinctly American plan providing for the resumption of trade with Russia and the sending of relief to certain stricken regions in the Soviet republic.

President Wilson plans to send relief supplies with the understanding that their distribution will be effected on an equitable basis, and that none of them will be used for the support of the Soviet armies.

MILK SHORTAGE DUE TO BREAK

Boston & Maine Reports 52 Carloads on the Way to Boston

The Boston & Maine Railroad reports that fifty-two cars of milk are en route to Boston to relieve the shortage. These shipments include the normal daily supply of thirty cars, with the addition of twenty-two cars held up yesterday.

Traffic conditions are slowly improving. The complete system is not expected to be entirely cleaned up until tomorrow night. The Portland Eastern Division, north of North Berwick, is still impassable. Service is not attempted on the York, Dover or Georgetown branches, while a derailed milk train at Seabrook, N. H., blocks one of the tracks on the main line of the Portland Division.

Local passenger service on the Boston & Maine is running approximately normal. All through service from the North is affected and in the case of trains from Montreal a detour is being used via Bellows Falls and Greenfield. These trains are running from three to six hours late.

The lines between Concord, N. H., and White River Junction and between Concord and Claremont Junction are still blocked.

On the Boston & Albany and the New Haven normal conditions prevail.

Many homes in the White Mountains are still isolated and attempts to send milk to them have proved fruitless, with roads and railway lines buried under snow as high as thirty feet in many instances.

COAL SHIPMENTS STOP.

Coal shipments to Boston, by water and rail, have been practically shut off by the blizzard, and while conditions previous to Saturday were approaching normal, the situation today is rapidly reaching the acute stage of two weeks ago.

At a meeting of the New England sub-coal committee action was adopted looking to the return of nearly a dozen ships, aggregating a carrying capacity of 70,000 tons, which threaten to become lost to New England for coal carrying purposes owing to the slopes between the old and new coal committees. Members of the board said that it would probably be at least two days more before coal transportation becomes normal.

Montpelier, Vt., faces a water famine, the pressure in the mains having dropped from 160 to 45 pounds, due to the clogging of the outlet from Berlin Pond, from which the city obtains its water. All school sessions in the Capital city were suspended, and arrangements had been made to fill the city water mains from the Winooski River in case of fire.

NEW HAVEN NORMAL.

The Worcester, Nashua & Portland division of the Boston & Maine is still in poor shape, being blocked completely between Ayer and Nashua, as well as between the latter city and Portland, but officials declared that they believed it would be open on one track, at least, some time today.

Branch lines of the Boston & Maine, including those in the White Mountains, which are blocked by drifts in ledge "cuts," and the Newburyport, Georgetown, Lawrence, Manchester, Essex, Amesbury, York Beach, Keene and Hillsboro and some others, which have been blocked since the big blizzard of a week ago, are still tied up and will be, officials said, unless the weather remains fine and gives the crews digging out a chance to work unhampered by further difficulties.

WOMEN TAKEN BY AUTO COME UNDER MANN ACT

Washington, March 9.—Transportation of women from one State to another in private automobiles for immoral purposes will continue to come under the Mann Act, by a ruling of the United States Supreme Court.

POLITICIANS IN 'WET' REVOLT

Leaders of Both Big Parties Foresee Crises on Prohibition Issue

By International News Service.

Washington, March 9.—A nation-wide liquor "revolt" is in full swing. Just how serious it is cannot be accurately estimated at present, but both "wets" and "drys" admit it will culminate in a crisis at the conventions next June.

Leaders of the two big parties are today observing a conspicuous "hands off" attitude, in so far as the question bears on the national tickets of next November.

But various Congressmen, Senators, Governors of States and individual politicians, both Democrats and Republicans, are leading "wet rebellions," which in some cases admittedly are assuming alarming proportions.

It was also predicted here that a titanic battle between the antis and the prohibitionists will take place at the San Francisco convention, when the "wets" attempt to force a liquor plank into the Democratic platform.

William Jennings Bryan, recognizing the importance, has practically sidetracked all other political business in order to deal with this issue, which he declared promises to swamp all others until settled one way or another at the convention.

Republicans here claim they do not expect any such issue to ever prohibition at Chicago. They do anticipate, however, some reference to it in their platform. The belief, however, is that this will not go beyond taking the stand that the same machinery which made the nation "dry" is still in existence and at the disposal of the people.

Not a single Republican candidate has come out in the open and declared even light wines and beer, while one, Senator Poindexter of Washington, has declared in favor of the eighteenth amendment as it stands.

Like the Republicans, few Democratic or national reputation expect their platform makers to go on record as favoring a return to the old order of things, but some of them declare they would not be surprised to see a "tip-toeing" plank inserted or something said about a "return to old principles" which left more latitude to the States.

BOOM FOR EDWARDS.

Governor Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey, according to reports reaching Washington, from being an obscure State politician, has become a national figure. In some sections he is boomed for the Presidency.

While not taking his boom as altogether serious, thoughtful Democrats here declare he will undoubtedly be one of the dominant forces at San Francisco and one destined to precipitate the hottest fight the convention will see.

Attorney-General A. Mitchell Palmer, Democratic candidate, declares he does not see a predominant issue in the liquor question, though he does profess to believe it will become sufficiently important "to merit discussion."

William Jennings Bryan, however, is less optimistic and has let it be known that when he leaves for the Pacific Coast he will carry along a well sharpened battle axe for the political beheading of Edwards and the more or less numerous band who will be behind him.

DEMOCRATS FLIRTATIOUS.

On the whole the Democrats are said to be in a more flirtatious mood regarding the liquor question than the Republicans. This was clearly demonstrated when Representative Eagan, Democrat, of New Jersey, offered a motion in the lower house, which in effect was to repeal the national prohibition act on and after July 1 this year, making it a round year of drouth.

Of the eighty-five votes favoring repeal, only forty were cast by Republicans, and forty-five were by Democratic congressmen.

Considering there are but 190 Democrats in the House and some forty-four of these failed to vote, this percentage, as compared with the Republicans, who number 236 in the House, appears greater than ever.

Bay State Prohibition Case Heard in Supreme Court

Washington, March 9.—Arguments for and against the constitutionality of the national prohibition amendment and the validity of the Volstead enforcement law continued today before the United States Supreme Court.

The Rhode Island argument was disposed of early and the court heard attorneys in the Kentucky and Massachusetts cases and in the New Jersey case, which is similar to that of Rhode Island.

Arguments in the Massachusetts case brought by George C. Dempsey, hinged on the necessity for concurrence by the States in enforcement of the prohibition law and Congress had acted to enforce a law without such concurrence by Massachusetts.

Chief Justice White confined arguments solely to the question at issue.

"This is to be no four-mile race on a one mile track," he warned the attorneys early in the proceedings. He issued instructions that the attorneys should select the issues they desired to present to the court and that an argument on each such issue was finished by the attorney presenting it there should be no recurrence to such issue by other attorneys.

In the Kentucky distilleries and warehouse company case the attorneys, Levy Mayer and William Marshall Bullitt of Chicago, presented the argument that the prohibition amendment had not been legally enacted because the necessary two-thirds of all members elected to House and Senate had not voted in favor of its submission to the voters of the several States, and that it had not been ratified by the thirty-six States, the required number, because twelve of the States claimed to have rescinded it have referendum laws and the ratifying action of the Legislatures in such States was not submitted to the voters as required under the referendum law.

Dollar Haircut Soon, Is Prediction

New York, March 9.—This won't interest baldheaded men or movie heroes, but it is of more than passing importance to the rest of us:

"The price of a haircut is soon going to be $1," said Leon Worthall, general organizer of the Barbers' Union, today.

"Seventy-five cents will be the next price, and soon after that $1. The barbers have to do it—high rent, expensive supplies and labor.

declared his first instructions were "vague and unsatisfactory," and he had labored under serious handicaps overseas because he was 3,000 miles away from the Navy Department.

"I have raised no question what-ever as to the efficiency of our navy in the war, viewed as a whole," Sims said. "Apart from those who directed it, the work our navy did, such as it was, was beyond all praise.

"My criticism was directed mainly at the faults committed in the first months of the war, and their failure to act promptly.

"Apparently the Navy Department believed that I and allied officials had over-estimated the seriousness of the situation. They failed to respond, and I am convinced that this failure to get adequate support during the first six months of the war seriously endangered the outcome and prolonged the war several months."

Sims denied he was "pro-British."

He said his father was an American of Revolutionary stock and he chanced to be born in Canada because his mother happened at the time to be on a visit to her father, who was a Canadian.

When he was told during the war he was being accused of being "pro-British" he said he replied:

"Why don't they send a pro-German over here with a trunk full of bombs?"

RENEWS FIGHT TO SELL SHIPS

Payne Files Motion to Dissolve Hearst injunction; Hearing on Friday

Laskey, Chairman Payne has filed a motion in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to dissolve the temporary injunction granted on February 24 by Justice Thomas Jennings Bailey on the petition of William Randolph Hearst.

QUESTIONS HEARST'S RIGHTS.

In his petition today, Chairman Payne states that the temporary injunction secured by Hearst "is costing the United States, $10,000 a day in the upkeep and maintenance of the vessels."

District Attorney Laskey, in his motion to dissolve the temporary injunction, simply restated the previous claims made by counsel for the Shipping Board that "the sale of the ex-German vessels is under law and the executive order of President Wilson empowering the Shipping Board to sell the vessels."

According to the board's petition today, the right of Hearst, as a taxpayer, to sue for an injunction preventing the sale of the ships, appears to be questioned, although Assistant Attorney-General Charles H. Ames, who appeared as government counsel at the previous hearing, waived this point.

It was then claimed by admiralty counsel that they "did not wish to try the suit on technicalities," and that the only question involved was the legal right of the Shipping Board to sell the ships.

The District Supreme Court already has held that the board did not have this right.

TO BE ARGUED FRIDAY.

It declares that "it is manifest upon the bill of complaint that the plaintiff sues solely as a taxpayer of the United States, and has no legal or equitable interest in the suit or any property right in virtue of which he is entitled to any relief against the defendant."

It was pointed out forcibly by attorneys representing Hearst at the previous hearings that this states the case that "the plaintiff has no "legal or equitable interest in the suit," except as a taxpayer protesting against the sale of vessels belonging to private interests, and at a price far below their value.

The hearing on the motion to dissolve the injunction will be held before Justice Bailey in the District Supreme Court Friday morning. It is understood that the entire motion to dissolve the injunction hinges on the question of law, as the facts already been decided against the shipping board.

DEADLOCK IN SYMPHONY PEACE MOVE; UNION INSISTS ON DEMANDS

TAKE UP CABOT OUSTER

Union Committeemen Discuss Letter Insisting on 'Open Shop' Idea

"Negotiations in the Boston Symphony Orchestra controversy have apparently reached a deadlock," declared Arthur Berenson, representing the organized players, today. He added that the men are as determined as ever to secure union recognition and that the dispute must soon come to an issue.

The usual rehearsal was held today, with those necessary on hand. The program, as outlined by W. H. Brennan, manager of the orchestra, calls for daily rehearsals and the usual Saturday night concert. Sunday night the orchestra, barring untoward events, is to leave for Washington for a nine-day tour. The itinerary calls for Washington on Monday, Baltimore on Tuesday, Philadelphia Wednesday, New York Thursday, Brooklyn Friday, New York Saturday afternoon and Newark Monday night.

A meeting of the union's committee was held today at headquarters on St. Botolph street, at which the letter sent last night by Judge Frederic P. Cabot, president of the trustees, to each of the members of the orchestra, was considered.

Judge Cabot declared in his letter that the trustees would not recede from the "open shop" principle. He told where the lying of the union conflict with the existing rules governing the orchestra, in that the union would take from the trustees the power to decide upon the desirability of a musician. He ended the statement with the following significant paragraphs:

"The trustees have duties and obligations to the present subscribers and sustainers and to the ever-widening group of subscribers. Most sustainers who are ready and eager to maintain the orchestra according to its great traditions.

"The trustees are going to live up to their obligations and duties and to carry on the concerts, and they cannot consent to the men assuming obligations fundamentally inconsistent with their contracts."

CONDEMNED MAN ADMITS HE KILLED 3 WOMEN

Louisville, Ky., March 9.—Will Lockett, negro murderer, whose trial at Lexington, Ky., was the cause of an attempted lynching and a riot in which six persons were killed, now waiting execution in the Kentucky state prison for the slaying of ten-year-old Geneva Hardman, confessed today to the murder of five women and the probable murder of a third. In all cases, he confessed, the victim was criminally assaulted after having been attacked.

The complete list of his victims is: Geneva Hardman, near Mount Eden, Ky.; white woman, at Carmi, Ill.; negro woman, near Camp Taylor, Ky., and a negro woman at Louisville, Ind., probably murdered, but Lockett did not know her fate definitely.

Lockett confessed an attempted attack on a white woman in Todd County, Ky., which was frustrated.

Cites Girl as Proof of Cure by Chinese

Dorothy Johnson, aged six, and her brother, children of Mrs. Frederick C. Johnson, who exhibited the girl while appealing for law to permit foreigners to practice medicine.

Exhibiting her little daughter as proof of the skill of Chinese medical practice, Mrs. Frederick C. Johnson of No. 20 Garrison avenue, West Somerville, appeared before the Committee on Public Health to urge legislation which would allow foreign physicians to practice in this State.

The little girl is Dorothy Johnson, 6, a pupil in the first grade of the Lincoln Grammar School.

Ever since she was a year and a half old, the mother said, she had been under the care of American physicians for a tubercular spine. She was forbidden to run about or exercise, and had to wear a steel brace, which Mrs. Johnson showed the committee.

This the child was obliged to wear at night and day; it interfered with her sleep and affected her appetite, according to the mother. After treatment by a Chinese physician, she added, the child was able to leave off the brace and had gained twenty pounds in weight.

Mrs. Johnson cited instances of neighbors who were cleared in tubercular cases until their health was restored by Chinese treatment.

MINERS ASK 60 P. C. INCREASE

Five-Day Week and Six-Hour Day Also Demanded by Hard Coal Workers

By International News Service.

New York, March 9.—Representatives of 170,000 anthracite miners this afternoon presented demands to the operators for a 60 per cent. wage increase, a minimum six-hour day, a five-day week, and other changes in mining conditions that were approved by the United Mine Workers of America at their convention in Cleveland last August.

There were indications that the negotiations might develop into a hard fight over the closed shop, as the representatives of the miners said they would insist upon this demand.

The demands were made during a meeting of the joint scale committee of anthracite miners and operators at the Pennsylvania Hotel.

The sessions today were mostly devoted to getting together. The delegates are following closely the developments of President Wilson's Coal Commission now sitting in Washington, and if this commission reports soon it is likely that the hard coal miners will be guided by its decision.

The miners' demands, aside from increases of wages amounting to about 60 per cent. during the past few years, call for what they term "decreases" or "emergency measures."

Acting President Lewis was asked if he considered the question of the closed shop negotiable. He smiled broadly as he replied: "I think all our demands are negotiable."

11 TOWNS VOTE FOR LICENSE

Eleven more Bay State towns, holding annual town elections, voted license, four of the number deserting the cause of prohibition, which they had last year espoused. Not one town, voting on the license question, upheld the "dry" amendment.

Norwell, for the first time in its history, went "wet." Peru, whose voters—what there was of them—went to the Town Hall on snowshoes, voted 6 to 5 against prohibition. The town has been consistently registered in the dry column for half a century.

After twenty-five years of prohibition Amesbury voted 844 to 494 for license. Weymouth and Rockland, "dry" contrast, last year, voted "wet."

The vote on the most mooted question in the various towns follows:

	Yes	No
Lynnfield	100	48
Saugus	351	185
Rockland	714	560
Abington	423	272

Clubman and Divorcee in Death Mystery

By International News Service.

Chicago, March 9.—The pick of Chicago's detective force was engaged today in endeavoring to solve the mysterious double killing of Captain Clifford Bleyer, president of a large advertising concern and member of several exclusive clubs, and Mrs. Ruth Randall, a beautiful divorcee, found dead together in the latter's apartment each shot in the right temple and with a revolver lying between them.

While their deaths appeared to be the result of a suicide pact, and while this theory borne out by evidence that Bleyer had been a visitor at the apartment for a long time, everything that no powder marks were discovered led to a theory that the two may have been murdered.

A "poem of death" written in a woman's hand was found on a desk in the bedroom. This read:

"Sleep! For my hand is
"Thy cold steel brow and pure.
"Strikes through thy heart and miss,
"Shedding our blood like wine."

Mrs. Bleyer, the wife of the slain man, is at home with their two little children, prostrated from grief. She said that she never had the faintest suspicion that her husband was leading a dual life. Mrs. Bleyer's maiden name was Andree Ganzeria. She lived with her father and mother in Paris and was married to Bleyer in that city twelve years ago. Bleyer served during the war as a captain in the army.

Nurse Shields Father of Her Baby

Washington, March 9.—"I shall not expose him; why should I blast his future career?"

This is the only answer Miss Grace Crews, pretty overseas nurse, would make today to repeated questions as to the identity of the father of her baby, for whose death a month ago she was vindicated by a coroner's jury.

All Miss Crews will divulge is that the father is a Chicago physician, who was stationed at the same base hospital while she was in France. Miss Crews is now assistant superintendent of the Children's Hospital here.

The child was born a month ago. The mother, who was unattended, concealed the body in a trunk and when it was discovered she insisted that the babe had died at birth and of natural causes. In this the coroner's jury bore her out.

While at an American base hospital in France, Miss Crews was captivated by the Chicago physician connected with the hospital.

She said he had deceived her into believing he was unmarried, but that when an explanation was necessary he upheld her he "had a confession to make—that the confession might be shocking to her." The confession was to the effect that he had a wife living in Chicago.

Soon afterward Miss Crews returned to the capital. She says she had made arrangements for its care, that a nurse knew of its coming, but when the baby was born it was dead.

In explaining why she had placed it in a trunk, the nurse explained she intended to have it buried as soon as her condition became such as to enable her to leave the hospital.

Probably the most shocked of the girl's friends is a young interne connected with one of the hospitals.

DEPLORES LACK OF MINISTERS

Rev. F. E. Smith Condemns Donation Parties at Interchurch Session

Donation parties for the support of ministers were condemned today by the Rev. Frank E. Smith of Indianapolis, at the second day's session of the Interchurch World movement in Park Street Church.

No sooner a minister Smith uttered the words than some minister in the back part of the church shouted, "Thank God, I've had enough of them."

"Young men are not coming into the churches," continued Dr. Smith. "One third of the churches are vacant. In many sections the men are not trained. The large city churches do not pay as much to their ministers, pro rata, as the smaller churches. Some of ministers are not following in the tracks of their fathers. They see what deprivations are found in the home of a cultured man who had been obliged to suffer all sorts of inconvenience in living because he does not get a living wage. We are losing 5,000 ministers from the Christian pulpit every year.

"Of the 170,000 ministers in America, one-half receive less than $1,000 a year.

Rev. Dr. Fred B. Haggard, secretary of the organization, discussing Russia said: "The trouble with Russia is they have developed religion without morality."

Professor Walter S. Athearn of Boston University amused the audience by telling of a Methodist Sunday seventy grammar school pupils who were asked to bring money to school each day to buy something for the school that would allow them to have each a dime bank.

"The children did not know this as we desire to test their ethical value," he said. "We made arrangements with the proprietor of the store to sell them what they wanted and give each the dime in change. How many do you think after purchasing the articles returned the dime left over? Seven out of every ten kept the dime and did not say anything about it. Most of these children came from the families of professional men."

Old maid aunts and grandmothers in homes must be called into service to teach the children spiritually, when the mothers' hands are tied, it was urged at the women's session in the First Methodist Church by Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Beverly.

"These mothers must be helped in their homes and where their hands are full of other cares, other members of the family should supplement the work," said Mrs. Peabody.

Mrs. William Walker, wife of Provost Walker of Yale University, urged mobilizing women in their homes and getting them to mark the need of spiritual Christian teaching.

ROBERT GOELET SUED BY COOK FOR $10,000

New York, March 9.—Robert Goelet of No. 820 Fifth avenue was sued for $10,000 yesterday by Anna Elisa McKeon, who in May, 1916, was a cook at the Goelet country place at Chester, N. Y. In her complaint she says that while in Mr. Goelet's employ she met with an accident and suffered numerous injuries. It is said she slipped and fell on a polished linoleum floor. The suit charges that the injuries will prove permanent.

It is understood in that paper that week-end conferences were held in Paris between Premier Nitti and Italian Foreign Minister Trumbitch of Jugo-Slavia with a view to effecting a mutual understanding on the difficulties. These conferences, however failed, and the entire matter apparently is cast back again upon the big powers.

ATTLEBORO GIRL IS SCALDED TO DEATH

Attleboro, March 9. — Andenette Grinald, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Grinald, died at the home of Her parents, No. 209 Chestnut street, as the result of burns received when she fell from a bench into a pan of boiling hot water.

HIGH BIDS FOR SERVANTS

Incapable Housekeepers Sending Wages Up, Says Employment Secretary

"A domestic worker is financially better off today than a stenographer or secretary earning four times her wage. Domestics are paid out of all proportion to service rendered, and the fault lies largely with incapable employers."

Miss Grace E. Cook, secretary of the Massachusetts Technical and Commercial Employment Association, denounced the present high scale of wages for domestics, and declared that the responsibility was with incapable American women who were helpless to do their own work, and at the mercy of their servants.

"Competitive bidding is partly at the root of this wage inflation," said Miss Cook. "An employment agency receives offers for the same worker from women who outbid each other, and the wages are ridiculous terms. The demand for domestics is increasing, and the wages are increasing out of all proportion.

"The average American woman employing domestic help is incapable of doing her own work, and at the mercy of the servants' demands. Workers are quick to see this, and to take advantage of it. They know that their terms will not be refused by woman who are helplessly dependent on their labor.

"Another reason for this high wage lies in the spirit which at present underlies all American labor—the spirit to get all you can, with no regard to giving. Workers are continually making demands, and paying back no adequate service rendered.

"Our situation in regard to domestic wages cannot be compared with England's, because our customs, our scale of living, are different. England is under a labor administration; we ourselves are becoming more and more at the mercy of organized labor.

"The domestic problem is only a reflection of all our labor problems, and fundamentally it is the same. I believe that any attempt to form a domestic workers' union would be disastrous. Such a move would destroy a servant's initiative, and would lead to careless and untrained service.

"A domestic worker at the end of the month has more actual cash saving than a secretary or stenographer who is paid $50 a week. The standard of living which a secretary is forced to maintain because of her appearance and outfit than that of a worker who received board, room, and laundry free.

"The future of this problem depends on the attitude of both worker and employer. Work, in a spirit of service, is dignified. Employers of domestic help should learn to cooperate, and to study the basic principles of the problem, rather than to increase the danger by their dependence on and their frantic bidding at exorbitant rates."

BITTER ATTACK ON MRS. NELSON

'Degraded Specimen,' Charges Attorney Hurlburt; Divorce Under Advisement

After one of the most vehement and bitter denunciations of a woman ever heard in a Massachusetts court room, delivered by Henry F. Hurlburt, counsel for Ernest E. Nelson of Winchester, in the latter's suit for divorce from Eva Guptil Nelson on grounds of infidelity, Judge Sanderson today took the case under advisement.

The sensational hearing, which lasted ten days, came to an end in East Cambridge Superior Court.

Admitting that his client was jealous, "a poor fool of a husband" and "a deluded husband," Attorney Hurlburt denounced Mrs. Nelson in the words: "A more degraded specimen of womanhood I cannot think of."

JEALOUS, BUT LOVING.

Referring to Nelson's admitted jealousy, he said: "Where there is jealousy there is love. My client was jealous of his wife, but he did love her. If a man does not love his wife he is indifferent."

He declared that when Mrs. Nelson went to dances without wearing corsets and against the wishes of her husband, she "went to the edge of a moral precipice."

"She indulged in a dance known as the dip, which was most repulsive to her husband," said Attorney Hurlburt. "The way she leaned back was done solely for the purpose of luring the man who held her in his arms. In that the act of a modest woman with a child at home? She wore a costume at Falmouth so offensive to her husband that he told her to go in and put on a petticoat."

Attorney Hurlburt referred to James B. Green, named by Mr. Nelson in his suit, with whom Mrs. Nelson, according to her testimony, was registered for two days at a New York hotel as his wife, being accompanied by her five-year-old daughter, Nancy. He said:

"Mrs. Nelson has said here that 'ordinary people' would surmise that something else happened on those two nights when she admitted Green to sleep on a couch in her apartment with nothing but a portiere between them. Most of us are 'ordinary people.' On that very night when she was in the arms of her sweetheart, she sent a telegram to her husband. He did not know that the very room in which she received the telegram his own little daughter, Nancy, was in the same apartment with them.

"DEGRADED SPECIMEN."

"And, coupled with Green's guilty kisses on her lips she transmitted those guilty kisses to the lips of her little child. Is this the degraded specimen of womanhood I cannot think of. Her whole career of falsehood shows her to be degraded.

"Mrs. Nelson has referred to this incident at the hotel as 'indiscretion.'"

Of the incident at the Gramatan Inn, where Nelson seized his wife's arm as she was dancing with Green, Attorney Hurlburt said: "She was fortunate that she was married to Ernest Nelson, for another man would not have stopped with merely a shaking of her arm and a threat to slap her, too. The only thing I regret," he continued, referring to the incident of Nelson dragging his wife to Green's office after she had promised not to see him again, "is that my client did not apply this to the same. He should have struck him in the face that day.

"Home is not just four walls and a roof. It is a sanctuary in which we place our wives and children. We go to work in the morning expecting to find them clean, sweet and undefiled when we return at night. The sanctuary in which this little child Nancy now lives is polluted, and she should not remain there. She should be given to her grandmother, who will see that she is properly protected and guarded."

SEES MOVE TO KILL BONUS

Congressman Fordney Wants to Get Bill to Aid Veterans Before the House

By International News Service.

Washington, March 9.—"Some member of this committee may be endeavoring to kill soldiers' bonus legislation by delay, but I, for one, want to draft a bill and get it before the House for action," declared Chairman Fordney of the House Ways and Means Committee today. The committee decided to call representatives of the Treasury Department Thursday.

Representative Kitchin, Democratic minority leader, gave his first intimation of hostility to the bonus proposition. "We must not do this hastily, as a raid on the treasury," said Representative Kitchin said.

Representative Frear, Republican, Wisconsin, suggested that the drafting of the bill be delayed until after March 23, when the executive committee of the American Legion will meet to take up bonus suggestions.

Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, Secretary of the Treasury Houston and Assistant Secretary Leffingwell will be called.

G. M. WOOD PROMOTED TO GENERAL FREIGHT AGENT

G. M. Wood, assistant general freight agent of the New Haven railroad, has been promoted to general freight agent to succeed L. H. Kentfield. J. E. McGrath will be his assistant.

200 QUIT NEW BEDFORD MILL

2,000 Fail to Answer General Strike Order for National Spun Silk Operatives

New Bedford, March 9.—Only 200 of the 2,200 employes at the National Spun Silk Mill struck today in obedience to the general strike order of the officers of the Amalgamated Textile Workers.

The union chiefs had predicted that at least 1,000 men and women would join the walkout.

Although company officials declared that the strike was broken before it started, trouble was predicted from the minority of 200. Strong police guards were stationed at the mill gates, and the company's force of private guards was increased to meet the emergency.

The strike is the indirect result of a demand for a flat 15 per cent. increase in wages. It followed directly on alleged slights to union heads by mill agents.

The Amalgamated Textile Workers are not strong here, according to employes who refused to strike, and cannot triumph. The strikers, on the other hand, predict fresh accessions to their ranks and ultimate success.

SAVE ATTLEBORO MEN BURIED BY COAL SLIDE

Attleboro, March 9.—Peter Gallant of Hawthorne street is in the Sturdy Memorial Hospital with two broken ribs. Gallant was unloading coal in the freight yard when the contents slid and buried him underneath. He was shovelled out by fellow employes.

RUSSIANS FLEE TO TURKEY

100,000 Famine-Stricken Refugees Seek Relief in Constantinople

By International News Service.

Paris, March 9.—One hundred thousand refugees from Southern Russia are en route for Constantinople or have just arrived there, according to belated dispatches reaching Red Cross headquarters today from the Turkish capital.

All of the refugees are famine stricken, many are sick and all suffered intense hardships. Thousands perished on the way, some from exposure and others from starvation or pestilence. Families became separated and the greatest misery has prevailed throughout the exodus.

The problem of caring for the fugitives has become most acute owing to the refusal of Greece and Rumania to admit them on account of the typhus epidemic. Greece stipulated that the wanderers might cross eastern Macedonia if they continued into Serbia. Many did this, but thousands of others are living in or near Constantinople, spending their days begging for a few scraps of bread to keep body and soul together.

American Women to Send Relief Ship to Russia

Washington, March 9.—The American women's emergency committee is ready to send a relief ship to Soviet Russia with medicines and other necessaries for the women and children as soon as the State Department grants clearance papers, Miss Emma Wold of New York city, executive secretary of the committee, announced today.

If the State Department does not grant the papers the committee will organize nation-wide mass meetings of protest, Miss Wold stated. Helen Keller, Jane Addams, Mrs. Willard Straight, Mrs. Egerton Winthrop, Jr., Mrs. Noel Edge, Miss Mary Dreier, head of the New York State Consumers' League, and other prominent women are members of the committee's advisory council.

UNDERTAKERS' PARLORS CALLED HEALTH MENACE

Sanitary conditions are so bad in the parlors of some Boston undertakers as to warrant their being closed as menaces to public health, Frank L. Briggs, an undertaker, said at a hearing conducted by Health Commissioner Woodward on the proposed new regulations for undertakers. He told of improper plumbing facilities in some of these places.

RAILROAD LANDLORDS

Rush of Tenants to Complain Against Profiteering on Rents

The offices of the Commission on the Necessaries of Life were crowded today with tenants seeking to complain of profiteering landlords, and scores of complaints of unwarranted rent increases, of high-handed eviction processes and similar things reached the commission.

According to all indications, much of the balance of the commission's life, which expires the first of next month, will be consumed in attempts to straighten out the difficult housing problem.

In order that its work may be carried on after April 1, the commission has formed sub-committees in Worcester, Springfield, Lawrence and New Bedford, from which cities have come hundreds of complaints in regard to rent profiteering and similar practices. The sub-committees have been holding hearings in these cities for some time, and when they find it necessary call on the commission for aid.

The landlords of these cities, however, after one or two conferences with the sub-committees, backed up by the authority of the commission, have found it best to follow the example of the Boston profiteers and abide by the decisions of the board.

It is probable that the work of the commission in forming permanent sub-committees to take care of rent profiteering will be greatly extended before the commission ceases work next month. In order that tenants may be protected through the Summer.

It is regarded as extremely likely that the rent profiteers will make an attempt to raise rents again during the Summer, and the sub-committees are expected to aid in preventing this.

Dispatches from New York show that municipality is about to conduct a campaign on the rent-increasing real estate sharks, similiar to that which brought such excellent results in Jersey City where the city brought the real estate manipulators to time.

In Jersey City the municipality backed tenants who resisted the efforts of landlords in the collection of unjust rents, the city becoming the defender of the tenant.

In Massachusetts, the commission plans to have its sub-committees act in the same manner.

Unions to Use X-Ray on U. S. Lawmakers

Washington, March 9.—Congressmen and candidates for Congress are now in for scientific research.

Their lives and habits are to be scientifically dissected by the labor railroad unions by experts, according to an announcement made today at the headquarters of the Plumb Plan League, which is directed by a board of executives from the "Big Four" brotherhoods and the railroad organizations in the American Federation of Labor.

Not only will the union maintain a blacklist for the coming election, it is stated, but they will card index every member of Congress and every aspirant for congressional honors, following the famous card index system of the National Woman's party. Through this card index the public for the asking may have a microscopic view of a congressman or candidate as he is sized up psychologically, economically and socially by experts.

All the intimate details of his life will be noted—his hobbies, his religious and social activities, his family connections, his wife's family connections, all the high and low spots in his business career, the size of his income, the source and how he spends it.

This "scientific researching" of Congressmen will be directed by Captain O. S. Beyer, Jr., formerly of the War Department, as head of Plumb Plan League's newly-established bureau of research and economics. Captain Beyer is a mechanical engineer by profession and an authority on economics.

ENGLAND GAINS GERMAN FAVOR

Cabinet Head Explains Cause of Pro-British Attitude of Present Rulers

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Boston American NEA Correspondent.
(Special Cable Dispatch.)

Berlin, March 9.—"England is manifesting a more friendly spirit and a greater disposition to work with Germany than to America," said a member of the German government to me today, in answer to charges by Count zu Reventlow, political editor of the Nationalist Deutsche Tages Zeitung, and George Bernhard, editor-in-chief of the Democratic Vossische Zeitung, that the present Cabinet is pro-British.

ENGLAND OFFERS AID.

The official whom I interviewed on this question, and who for obvious reasons could not allow the mention of his name, stated frankly that the British were exerting themselves considerably to create sentiment in Germany friendly to England. He pointed out that it was England which caused the extradition demands to be dropped; that it was the British voice which is now creating sentiment for the revision of the Versailles Treaty, and that at this very moment England is taking the stand that Germany must be given a large international loan and every aid to get back on her feet.

"And it is English concern," added my informant, "that are now making us propositions to work together in Russia."

IGNORE U. S. RELIEF.

Whatever may be back in the British official head in thus catering to German sympathies and working for an Anglo-German rapprochement, the new line of propaganda certainly is not without effect upon the German press and public.

Only the nationalistic circles—the very circles which formerly were intensely anti-American—and the so-called "Bernstorff wing" of the Democratic party are fighting the alleged pro-British tendencies of the present government, which are becoming steadily more manifest despite the extensive food relief coming from America.

Though thousands of food packages are pouring in from the United States in an uninterrupted stream, that fact seldom finds even slight mention in the German press.

"Medical Day" Today Sells Many Bonds to Doctors and Nurses

Thirty-two branches of the Central Council of Irish County Associations will be represented at the big Irish bond certificate drive meeting to be held in Historic Hall, Deacon Building, No. 1651 Washington street, South End, Friday evening. Edward F. McSweeney, James T. Sullivan and Richard J. Dwyer, national vice-president of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, will be among the speakers. John J. Foley will preside.

Gratifying reports were received today at the quarters of the American Commission on Irish Independence at the American House, Hanover street, from physicians and nurses in all sections of the city, this being "Medical Day" in the drive.

DR. McCARTEN COMING.

Dr. Patrick McCarten, envoy of the Republic of Ireland to the United States government, will come from Washington, D. C., on Thursday to address a conference of ward chairmen and precinct captains of the cities and towns in Greater Boston.

One more city went over the top today. Somerville reported that the $10,000 quota set for that city has been passed. City Chairman Thomas M. Nolan, in announcing the results, declared "we have just begun," and thinks Somerville's present mark may be doubled before the end of the drive.

MELROSE RALLY.

Melrose workers have planned a bond rally and mass meeting for tonight. It will be held in Knights of Columbus Hall, Melrose, and Rev. T. J. Flynn will preside. The principal speaker to be heard will be one of the Common Cause Forum of Boston.

William J. Brady of No. 31 East Concord street, aged ninety-six, born in Belfast, Ireland, subscribed for a $100 bond certificate. Chelsea reported that $1,000 has been raised as result of Sunday's meeting and that headquarters are open in the Catholic Citizen's office, Granby street, Chelsea.

Dedham's returns for the day totalled $250. Both the Knights of Columbus and Foresters in Dedham, according to F. J. McKenna, chairman, have pledged to buy a bond of $1,000.

The Mayo Men's Benevolent Association and the Ladies' Auxiliary have pledged their quota of $2,000, and the sum will be complete at a meeting Thursday evening at No. 694 Washington street.

IRISH BOND CASH IS SAFE FROM BRITISH

Dublin, March 9.—The British government's inquiry into Sinn Fein bank deposits is not likely to result in seizure of much of the millions of dollars subscribed in Ireland towards the Republican loan, as the money was transferred to American banks some months ago.

Paul Violette of Wytopitlock, Me., and the father of Fred J. Violette, a soldier during the war, has appealed to the Boston American to assist him in finding his son. The father said he had not heard from his boy since July 28, 1917, when a letter written in Boston by Paul told the family that he had enlisted in the Medical Corps and expected to sail for overseas within a month.

East Cambridge Among Leaders in Bond Drive

East Cambridge shines as one of the brightest spots in Massachusetts in the Irish Republic Bond Certificate Drive, according to directors of the loan campaign at headquarters in the American House.

More than $1,000 was collected in East Cambridge in six and a half consecutive hours by James T., Barrett, president of the Cambridge City Council and Councillor M. J. Hogan representing Ward 5.

New squads of canvassers were organized in Cambridge today with the avowed ambition of making a record for the city in the next few days.

The suggestion was made that stations should be established at central stations throughout the city, where persons anxious to invest in Irish bond certificates and whose names or offices had not been canvassed could go personally and make subscriptions.

The following is a partial list of East Cambridge subscribers, including a few who have already been pledged in Hingham under the auspices of the Phil Sheridan Branch, Friends of Irish Freedom, Hingham:

BRAND FILM BILL AS 'DANGEROUS'

New York State Mayors Condemn State Censorship as Radical and Un-American

In a unanimous report, the special committee appointed by the New York State Conference of Mayors condemns State censorship of motion pictures and recommends local regulation and licensing authorities of the municipalities of the State, according to the present Massachusetts laws which it holds as an example.

Branding State censorship as a "dangerous departure," the committee in direct terms advocates municipal regulation. The report, made after a most exhaustive investigation into the regulation of motion pictures, places a new weapon in the hands of the opponents of the censorship bill now before the Legislative Committee on Mercantile Affairs.

The New York Conference of Mayors is made up of the mayors and other city officials of the fifty-eight cities of that State. The conference is wholly non-partisan, and its sole purpose is the study of municipal problems for the mutual benefit of all the cities.

PROBE EXHAUSTIVE.

The investigation of the subject of motion picture regulation was made after a resolution was adopted at the annual meeting of the conference asking that this be done. The committee selected for this purpose was made as representative as possible, being appointed from the first, second and third-class cities, as the municipalities are classified in New York State, representatives of the Housewives' League, the Federation of Child Study, the Authors' League, American Federation of Labor and churches.

The committee began its investigation by a visit to the studios, where it saw the pictures in the making, saw them edited and how the review committee of the National Board of Review passed on the pictures. Following this four sub-committees were formed to make studies and special reports on State censorship, existing State laws, the National Board of Review and municipal regulation.

After these sub-committees had made their report another committee was appointed to draft a final report which was the one submitted to the Mayors' conference. This report was drafted by the Rev. Dr. Charles O. Judkins, pastor of the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church of Glens Falls, New York, who was the representative of the churches on the commission.

FEAR POLITICAL INFLUENCE.

On the question of State censorship the committee reported in part as follows:

"Legalized censorship of the film is a dangerous departure in a free country. It is scarcely less dangerous than a censorship of the press or the stage, for it places a ban on free ideas. The indecent, improper and immoral film can be eradicated by the same methods as are used against indecent, improper and immoral books or plays. It may make the passing of films a matter of political influence and result in consequent abuses of power. It does not reflect public opinion, but merely the personal views of the censors themselves.

"The experiment which has been tried in other States does not warrant the belief that such a radical departure from the principles upon which our government is founded, and which appear to be a necessity for that departure. Great as has been the improvement of the film in recent years, it would be greater and more rapid were the menace of censorship eliminated, and the art allowed to develop along its natural lines, governed by common sense and the good taste of the American people."

In prefacing its report, the committee declares that motion pictures are primarily an art, and the logical regulation is such regulation as would be applied to art, and not such as would be applied to journalism or literature or business.

ALLEGED GEM THIEF TAKEN

Muggley, Believed to Be Wanted in Boston, Arrested in Montreal

Montreal, March 9.—Henry H. Muggley, alleged to be an international famous jewel thief, is under arrest here on United States authorities. Muggley is believed to be wanted in Boston, Arlington and Springfield, Mass., as well as in Minneapolis and Ruscan, Wis. The Minneapolis authorities want him for defrauding a Twin City firm of diamonds valued at $6,000.

Muggley and his wife and little boy, all stylishly dressed, registered at the Windsor Hotel here. Shortly afterwards he called on Henry Birks & Sons, and the police allege, looked over some diamonds. He then crossed to Mappin & Webb, where the manager refused to let him have the diamonds he wanted and communicated with the detectives. Muggley was arrested here several days ago at the Windsor Hotel by detectives on order from Chief of Detectives Lecage.

It was reported at the Montreal office of the Burns agency that Muggley is wanted in Boston, Wis., on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses from the First National Bank there.

Muggley waived extradition before Judge Choquet, sitting as extradition commissioner. The local detectives arrested Muggley at the request of Chief of Police Walker of Minneapolis, and are awaiting the arrival of detectives from that city to take him back again.

FOR ABOLITION OF DEATH CHAIR

The Stone bill to abolish capital punishment in this State was reported favorably today by the legislative Committee on Judiciary.

The bill provides that first degree murder shall be punished by imprisonment for life. Second degree murder would be punishable by life imprisonment or "for any term of years."

The death chair would be used only when murder was committed by a person who was serving a life sentence for a prior murder.

A person convicted of murder would be eligible to pardon only after he had served half of his sentence.

Representative Bidwell of Great Barrington was dissented from the bill, Senator Foley and Representatives McDonnell and Moynihan of Boston and Gould of Milford reserved their right to dissent.

Secretary J. Frank Chase of the Watch and Ward society has agreed to a bill to legalize boxing, provided the contests are arranged and conducted by the American Legion.

The bill acceptable to Chase provides for the establishment of a boxing department in the State Department of Health, the licenses for bouts to be given to the American Legion posts, subject to local approval and the consent of the state commander of he Legion.

Mr. Chase insisted on inserting into the bill, "and such further regulations to prevent knockouts."

A public hearing for Thursday afternoon on the bill to legalize in this State was announced today by the Rules Committee of the Legislature.

OPINION OF VOTERS.

The Committee on Legal Affairs said, in recommending the bill for Supreme Court advice, that the vote at the last State election under the Public Opinion Act, indicates a desire of the majority of the people for the sale of beverages with an alcoholic content "considerably larger than the limit of one-half of 1 per cent., fixed by Congress in the Volstead act, but that it doubts the constitutional authority of the Legislature o pass such laws.

The bills to establish a State insurance fund and to allow employers to "carry" their own insurance under the Workmen's Compensation Insurance laws were reported adversely by the Legislative Committee on Judiciary. With the exception of the bill to extend the time injured employees to file their claims, all other bills to alter the compensation laws were voted down.

"BABY COULD NOT SLEEP SHE COUGHED SO ALL NIGHT."

Mother Thanks Father John's Medicine For Good Health It Has Given to Her Children.

"It was Father John's Medicine that kept my little girl alive," said Mrs. L. M. Wray of Brooklyn, N. Y., in a recent letter. "When Lowella was a year old she had a dreadful cold which left her with asthma and bronchitis which no doctor seemed able to relieve. After I began giving her Father John's Medicine I could see a great change in her and how much better she sleeps at night now. I will never be without it as long as there are children in the family. You may print this if you care to do so, as I want the world in the south. Both my children are much improved since I gave them Father John's Medicine and I have all the faith in the world in the medicine." (Signed) Mrs. L. M. Wray, 187 Prospect St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

No safer family medicine can be found than Father John's Medicine because it is guaranteed free from alcohol or dangerous drugs and is all pure, wholesome nourishment. It has held more than sixty years of success for colds, coughs and as a body-builder.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers —Meat forms uric acid.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.—Advertisement.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX On Life Beyond the Grave

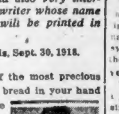
Letters of Poetess Reveal "Communications From the Spirit World"

(The following hitherto unpublished letters from America's greatest poetess to her favorite brother, Marcus P. Wheeler, Windsor, Wis., a Civil War veteran, constitute a remarkable human document. At one and the same time they set forth what she believed her certain knowledge of the life hereafter, based upon communications from her husband, Robert M. Wilcox, who died in 1916, and also very interesting sidelights on the daily life and views of this writer whose name is known to everyone who reads. These letters will be printed in daily instalments.)

Paris, Sept. 30, 1918.

Dear Marcus:

I am using paper I had in my bag because one of the most precious things over here is paper. You have to carry a loaf of bread in your hand without paper, and a little Fall turban I bought the other day was delivered without box or paper.



Your letter of September 11th followed me here from Tours. I left there the 20th. I have my passports started and will get them in a day or two. The clerk said mine was 22 francs. Then he added:

"If you'll send me a book of your poems we'll call it square."

Mrs. Randall's was issued to New York six weeks later than mine, so there was some new law that makes hers free and less red tapey than mine.

The things we have to do over here to live, breathe, move about and get fed! Today was the last of three days when we can get sugar and bread tickets. We are allowed a pound of sugar each a month, but I lost last month's ticket so feared I could not get a new one as you have to turn in the stub.

Well, we were just talking of it down in the vestibule of the hotel before starting out to find the Mayor, after we had our papers made out here, when along tripped a lovely French girl I knew in Tours. Her father lives here and I fancy they are pretty well off. She and I read French together once a week in Tours for two months. She had a big package and was just going to the hospital where her brother from the Front is dying slowly. I told her our errand, and she said:

FACED SUGARLESS MONTH.

"Why, don't bother, here is a pound of sugar for you. I have plenty more, and here is a bread ticket, too."

Did you ever! Well, we took it, but we thought best to go and get another pound of sugar on Mrs. Randall's ticket. But when we got to the Mayor's there were fully three hundred people ahead of us. Such a mob! We would have stood there two hours at least before our turn came.

If we hadn't had the French girl's gift we would have stayed, as the morning coffee we make in our room is our one delight, and we haven't any for tomorrow left. And we would have faced a sugarless month. But with that found we decided to give up the ordeal of standing in line, so came back to rest in the hotel.

Ford has gone up amazingly since we were here in the Spring. My three days here have cost me more than any week since I left America. But I fancy I will be able to plan a less expensive system in London. My friends there will put me wise, as the boys say. Anyhow it will be no more expensive than America would be were I there.

EAGER TO SEE MAGAZINE.

I am crazy to see the October Cosmopolitan, which you spoke of reading. I was surprised to have you say "I Too," was used. I supposed that was to appear after my Memoirs were finished. I wrote it just a year ago before I began the Memoirs, or about the same time. I wasn't twenty minutes writing it and cried all the time. I was at the Park Avenue Hotel, New York, and there was a wild rain outside. I had been down in the dining room and sat in the corridor to hear the wonderful orchestra play. A pair of lovers came in and that gave the germ for the poem. I went upstairs to my room and wrote it. I think it one of my best.

I have been a half-hour with Mrs Wills today, and we have again had some very glorious messages from Robert. She was the one through whom they came last March, when he went on away from Paris. Her power is not quite as great as then, yet it is there. She has been through a fearful operation, and her vitality is low.

Yesterday I was at Versailles all the afternoon, where I was ten years ago with Robert. Today he wrote: "I was beside you all day yesterday. I went with you and May. You must never be gloomy or sad. I am forever and ever your lover. I am looking after you in all things. When you are more developed you will be told many more things about this life you must keep on with prayer and meditation. Call on us. It sets vibrations going which help us to help you. You are more wonderful than ever before. With all my soul I love you. Go to London in joy and peace. Great knowledge will come to you there."

WONDERFUL MESSAGE.

All my most wonderful messages have come, as I told you before, when both of us are blindfolded and a third person takes down the words. I never could have been sure the other person did not move the board otherwise except the French people, who speak no English or read it). Mrs. Randall knew Robert twenty years, and she has had some very curious psychic experiences in the past. Yet she and I cannot get the board to even quiver. Robert says we have not the right vibratory combination. Mr. Ritter, his best friend, was the same. I have met only three in America and four here who got the great messages with me.

Ira Hirshner R. Ellis) has a ray of the truth in his idea, because electricity is the name of a great God power which we only know in its material phases. Our minds are electricity. God himself is the battery.

Whatever the prevailing state of mentality you take to the Ouija board or séance room will attract that kind of entities. There are hosts of "elemental sort of spiritual jesters" who love to get in touch with humans, and there are earthbound souls, too. Danger lies in fooling with them unless you have understanding and reverence to guide you.

With the exception of Mrs. Curran, who bought Patience Worth to write on the Ouija, I feel no one ever had such wonderful messages as mine. My love and loneliness and intense desire for speech with my beloved were so compelling they burned a path to him and set the wires working, and I was so absolutely unremitting in my search nothing and nobody could stop me. God just knew it was up to Him and let me find a way. Ouija is the very crudest way there is unless we except table tipping. I hope to develop something higher.

You needn't worry about germs for me. Everybody thinks I look so much better than I did when I left Paris, and I certainly feel finely. Robert insists that if I fill myself with thoughts of God no sickness will stay near me. He said last month when I had a lot of little ailments that they were a cloud of karmic troubles which were to clear my path and they would not stay long. It proved so.

I am disappointed not to have seen or heard from Archie before leaving France. The only boy of the millions I have met over here who I ever knew in America I met last week in Tours. He was born the year I was married, and his father and Robert were business associates and his mother and I great friends. She died five years ago. I always mention her in my prayers to God with about a half-dozen others whom I want to keep close to, and I fancy she helped my meeting her son. He took us to dine, and we had a splendid time.

Mrs. Randall has just made a cup of tea, and I must stop and have a little cosey bite. We get our own breakfast and tea and go out for a noon meal. Or else go at night and lunch in our room. It is more homey and less expensive.

I am glad you go to movies. There was a queer crank of a newspaper man at the Tours Hotel who was a regular circus in many ways, an old bachelor who has lived over here twenty years. Well, he insisted that I was one of the features of the war.

ELLA.

BROOKLINE HOME IS DESTITUTE

Family of 4 in Urgent Need in Nation's Richest Town Through Misfortune

The attention of the American has been called to a pathetic case of destitution of a deserving family in Brookline, who, through no fault of their own, have been reduced to deplorable straits.

With creditors pressing hard for payment of small bills for coal, rent, light, food and furniture, the last named purchased on the installment system, and with no income to pay them, the mother, Mrs. F., lies ill.

YOUNG MOTHER DESERTED.

Worse still, her daughter, bride of a year and mother of an infant aged six weeks, is also ill; while the fourth and last member of this dejected family is a girl of sixteen, not strong, and incapable of earning more than a bare pittance.

Mrs. F.'s illness in the past several months compelled her to relinquish position as domestic at a liberal salary. When her daughter married a year ago, the mother put what meagre savings she had into furniture and a home for the young couple.

Two months ago the husband took his bride far West and deserted her soon after the baby's birth. The young mother had to make her way back to Boston as best she could. She is too ill to work, as is her mother, although both are anxious to obtain employment.

FACTS ARE CONFIRMED.

An investigation by an American representative has confirmed the facts of the case and the need of assistance by this sickly but courageous family. The American will furnish the address of this family to anyone who wishes to aid them.

Fashion Decrees Many Quaint Hats and Suits Rich in Color

PHOTOGRAPH BY WHITE, BOSTON — PHOTOS © BY INTERNATIONAL UNDERWOOD

Above, left to right, rose pink taffeta gown with silver trimmings, exhibited by R. H. White Company, Premet model gown of charmeuse, sequins and steel beads, featured by Shepard Norwell Company, French sport costume of silk etamine and duvetyn with embroidery to match, a Jordan Marsh Company feature, Georgette gown, trimmed with bands of self tone, seen at Hovey's, tan sport coat of wool tricotine, exhibited by Gilchrist Company, and navy cape of serge with taffeta ribbon collar bow, shown at Jordan Marsh Company's.

Two things concern a woman before all else, when she goes out to choose her Spring clothes. Those two things are her suit and her hat. Perhaps this is why Boston stores have taken extra, loving pains to make the Spring hats joyous and the Spring suits fresh and crisp and colorful of the happiest season of the year. For, of suits and of hats, from grave to gay; from conservative navy blues to broad checks, to peach bloom and old blue, the shops are full.

When it comes to hats, Gilchrist & Co. are showing Paris hats like the like of which were never seen in Boston before. Raffia, in flaming orange; raffia braided in delicious, contrasting shades; raffia sheliaced, adorn little saucy toques of Maria Guy and Suzanne Talbot, side by side to the very newest in cellophane. This is a lustrous material, black and shining, particularly fitted for the hat that goes with the suit.

AMONG QUAINT HATS.

Among the quaint hats shown by Gilchrist's is the ear ring hat. This is a beaded black confection, snugly nestling over the head, with part little jet ear rings falling in the place where ear rings generally fall. A gray sport hat is another in the same collection that deserves a word as it combines two uses—that of sports, for Southern wear, and that of the shade hat to go with the fluffy summer dress.

The suits to go with these hats are altogether adorable. And, at least in the Spring showings, the tailored suit seems to have given place to the suit not quite so formal. Filene's misses' department shows one suit that any mother would be glad to choose for her young daughter. It is of navy blue tricotine, with a vest of deepest rust. There is a small amount of braid on the vest, giving a touch of the oriental.

But the Jordan March Company also shows Spring suits particularly suited for early wear. One of these was a three piece suit. The skirt, of tricotine, in navy blue, was attached to a blouse of deepest blue brocade with a flowering figure of silver. The Eton jacket was cut with rather long line at the hips to give the plump girl a touch of camouflaged slenderness. It was a suit that would do duty nicely at most any afternoon function.

SHADES FOR SPORTS WEAR.

But navy blue, while always good, is by no means all the showing in suits. Checks, combined with plain colors are shown in all the stores, for sports wear. Then one suit of softest tan duvetyn was bloused at the waist in Russian fashion. A border of braid about the jacket gave an Oriental finish.

In blouses to go with the suit the oriental is further developed. Some generalities in regard to blouses culled from the showing of half a dozen shops, should be considered by the woman about to select the blouse to go with her suit. Here they are: Tricot blouses are generally cut shorter in the front, and are trimmed with vivid designs in rose, jade, amber and blue. Hand made blouses, with real filet, are in demand. Half and three-quarter sleeves come with most blouses, and basque effects, with self-covered buttons, trim many blouses. Surplice is the style of some, with dainty little sashes gathering one or two of them at side or back. Plaited ruffles, round necks, bead trimming, and oriental embroidery, are all features of the new showings.

The woman who goes out a-shopping for blouse, hat and suit, this Easter time, will have many delightful things, as shown in Boston shops, to choose from.

THE LADIES DO THEIR BIT

"Women social leaders join writers and ministers as snow shovelers."—News item.

The poet leaves his songs and odes
To wield a shovel on the roads.
The parson leaves his still retreats
To chase the snowbanks from the streets.

The ice king laughs. His drifts are high,
He views their toil with scornful eye.
Though stoutly digs the bold brigade,
Vain is the work of pick and spade.

But now the ice king shrinks with fear,
As dainty footsteps hasten near.
The Women's Social Club advances.

KICKED, STABBED SAYS HUSBAND

Waban Man in Court Declares Wife Has Been Beating Him Since 1901

After fighting what he called a losing battle for about twenty years, Charles F. Lawrence of No. 96 Waban avenue, Waban, was forced to seek a divorce, he testified at East Cambridge today.

Seeking freedom on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment on the part of Alice S. Lawrence, the witness said that his wife began beating him in 1901 and had been at it ever since.

On one occasion Lawrence said his wife stabbed him in the hip with a paper knife, and at other times he said she cut his nose, kicked him on the legs and smashed his glasses repeatedly.

The woman frequently adjured her husband to jump in the river, and her favorite characterization of her lord and master was "damned cuss," he said.

Melvin M. Johnson, counsel for Lawrence, said that Mrs. Lawrence was animated by "persistent cussedness," and attempted to break up her husband physically and financially.

The couple were married in Lexington, June 5, 1900, and lived at Nahant, Brookline, Winthrop Highlands and Newtonville. Lawrence is clerk employed by the General Electric Company.

SOCIETY WOMEN WILL SERVE AS GODMOTHERS

Twelve Boston society women are organizing a "godmother" movement here for the benefit of Serbian war orphans. They are members of the Boston Committee of the Serbian Child Welfare Association, and seek 1,000 of these American "godmothers" in Greater Boston. Each "godmother" is expected to provide $73 a year for the support of her adopted "godchild." Mrs. James Loyal Little is Boston chairman. Sergeant Ruth Farnham, the American girl who was a sergeant in the Serbian army, will lecture before women's clubs in aid of the movement. Her first talk will be given before the Belmont Women's Club tomorrow.

Pierce Again Retires; Crowley Alone Rules

Boston again has only one superintendent of police. Former Superintendent William H. Pierce, who was recalled to service six months ago when the patrolmen struck, went back to private life today, leaving Superintendent Michael H. Crowley the sole head of the department.

The superintendency has cost the city at the rate of $14,018 a year during the last few weeks. A salary at the rate of $7,025 was paid the former superintendent, while $7,000 was the rate paid to Superintendent Crowley.

The general order from Commissioner Curtis retiring the former superintendent was read at rollcall at all the police stations last night. Mr. Pierce's efforts toward inaugurating the new department were highly commended in the order.

CATCH SAILOR IN ACT OF THEFT

Sells $500 Worth of Ship Rope for $90; Is Given Suspended Sentence

Two quartermasters on board the steamship North Wind saw Walter Stoll, a seaman, paying out 1,500 feet of rope through a port hole to a junk dealer in a motor boat alongside the craft at the Massachusetts Coal Wharf, Marginal street, East Boston. They notified Captain Balcar when he went aboard and he in turn notified the East Boston police.

Stoll pleaded guilty in the East Boston Court, was given a suspended sentence of a month, and placed on probation on the charge of larceny.

The rope was valued at $500. Stoll lit to a junk man for $90, who in turn sold it for $150. It was eventually returned to the steamship.

Girls have reported being accosted by him and saddressed in an offensive manner.

DANCING ACT HEADS BILL AT KEITH'S

Headline honors at B. F. Keith's Theatre this week are divided between Bessie Clayton and her company of Spanish dancers, and Thomas E. Shea in character sketches of his three successes, "The Cardinal," "The Bells" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." The entire bill is an unusually good one.

Mr. Shea comes from Lawrence and that his "spotlights" were delightful was attested by warm response. He is well supported by Edwin Holland, Daniel Jarrett and Leah Javne.

Bessie Clayton's act presents a combination of the American and Spanish types, and attention should be given to her eccentric comedy dancer, James Clemons. The Spanish dances given by Ellis and Eduardo Cansino are somewhat of a novelty here. They are well executed.

Tony Hunting and Corinne Francis have an amusing comedy act called "The Flower Shop." It is noted that this act was given for the A. E. F., including the Army of Occupation. Leon Varara shows how the piano should be played.

Hazel Moran throws the lariat in true "wild west" manner; William Brack and his company of acrobatic tumblers please; Charles and Madeline Dunbar have a novelty sketch entitled "Animal Pantomime," in which they cleverly portray various animals. There are also Fenton and Fields, dark-faced comedians, and Bessie Clifford in "Art Impressions." The usual Kinogram and Topics of the Day complete the bill.

A SHAMPOO WORTH TRYING

It is not necessary to shampoo your hair so frequently if it is entirely and properly cleansed each time by the use of a really good shampoo. The easiest to use and quickest drying shampoo that we can recommend to our readers is one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair and may be enjoyed at very little expense, by dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, which can be obtained from any druggist's, in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid, enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just to the top of the head. This, when rubbed into the scalp and onto every strand of hair, chemically dissolves all impurities. It is very soothing and cooling in its action, as well as beneficial to both scalp and hair. After rinsing out the lather so created, you will find the scalp is fresh, clean and free from dandruff, while the hair dries quickly and evenly, developing a bright luster and a soft fluffiness that makes it seem very heavy.—Advertisement.

Plays That Remain

SHUBERT THEATRE—The second week of the "Greenwich Village Follies," that brilliant revue based on life in New York's famous Latin Quarter, began at the Shubert Theatre last night with Francis White, James Watts, Ted Lewis, Ada Forman, Al Herman, the other principals, and the "famous artists' models" chorus.

WILBUR THEATRE—The fourth week of Rachel Crothers' pleasing comedy of youth, love and New York boarding house types, "39 East," began at the Wilbur Theatre last night.

ARLINGTON THEATRE — "The Outrageous Mrs. Palmer," Harry Girtbler's amusing new play, with Mary Young in the title role, is now playing its eighth successful week at the Arlington Theatre, where it is pleasing thousands of theatre-goers weekly.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—No farce of recent seasons has met with such popular success as that which has been achieved by "The Girl in the Limousine," which is on its third week at the Plymouth Theatre.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—Mlle. Anna Bara began the second and final week of her fortnight's visit in person in "The Blue Paradise" at the Majestic Theatre last night before the customary large audience.

TREMONT THEATRE—Elsie Janis and her gang began the final week of the engagement at the Tremont Theatre last evening. As a musical revue this constitutes one of the distinct novelties of the season which has resulted in a most popular attraction.

COLONIAL THEATRE—"The Royal Vagabond" began its fourth week at the Colonial Theatre last evening. The tuneful musical comedy's highly musical attraction has enjoyed in ample testimony of its worth as entertainment.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—At the Hollis Street Theatre last evening "Bab" entered the fourth week of its engagement. This charming comedy, written by Edward Childs Carpenter from the delightful humorous stories by Mary Roberts Rinehart, is a happy contribution to the stage.

TREMONT TEMPLE—The concluding fortnight of Mary Pickford in "Pollyanna" began at Tremont Temple yesterday. As a film attraction this takes first eminence through its potent heart appeal further dressed by the plenitude of comedy it contains.

WALDRON'S CASINO—Dan Coleman, "the wit of Emerald Isle," is undoubtedly the leading exponent of the Irish wit on the burlesque stage today. The burlesque lovers who always have a warm spot in their hearts for a good Irish character, Mr. Coleman is the monopolist of the Columbia Burlesque Wheel. His engagement with Harry Hastings' Big Show is for one week at Waldron's Casino. Coleman is a Bostonian and has a large personal following.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE—The thespreading public have always evinced marked and keen enthusiasm for mystery plays, and perhaps never more so than in the unravelling Sapho Veiller's greatest achievement, "The 13th Chair," which was played by the Somerville Players yesterday for the first time in that city.

SCOLLAY SQUARE OLYMPIA—Answering the age-old question, the society of which Lady Bountiful is a member and followers of occultism into a timid silence, D. W. Griffith, creator of film sensations, presented his latest creation, "The Greatest Question," to crept audiences yesterday at the Scollay Square Olympia. The accompanying bill of vaudeville includes James "Fat" Thompson, Bert Earle and girls, McManus and McNulty and Juliet Bush and Tom Bullock.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—Of transcendent interest yesterday at Gordon's Olympia was the big prize contest staged in connection with the feature photoplay, "The Right of Way," starring Bert Lytell. This unusual picture has two endings, and patrons are invited to turn dramatic critics, telling in 200 words which is the better ending, and why. A purse of $25 will be awarded for the best opinion submitted.

FRANKLIN PARK—D. W. Griffith's newest masterpiece of the screen, "Broken Blossoms," attracted large crowds to the Franklin Park Theatre yesterday at both performances.

CENTRAL SQUARE THEATRE—"When the Clouds Roll By," with Douglas Fairbanks, was shown at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre last night. Five big all-star vaudeville acts completed the bill.

LANCASTER THEATRE—Yesterday at the Lancaster was shown Eugene O'Brien in "The Broken Melody" and an all-star cast in "Blind Husbands." There will be a change of program on Thursday.

MALDEN AUDITORIUM—"Sauce for the Goose" is decidedly meant for laughing purposes only and those who witnessed yesterday's performances at the Malden Auditorium exhausted every means of applause.

UPHAM'S CORNER STRAND—Cecil B. De Mille has excelled all previous efforts in "Male and Female," his latest picture, which was shown yesterday to enthusiastic audiences at the Upham's Corner Strand.

Coming Events

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—On Monday evening, March 15, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest will present the second costume version of their Oriental extravaganza, "Chu Chin Chow," to the patrons of the Boston Opera House.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—It is now definitely announced that "The Magic Melody," the musical masterpiece of Sigmund Romberg, well-known composer of "Maytime," "The Blue Paradise," "Monte Cristo, Jr." "Princess" and every "Passing Show" since 1914, will come to the Majestic Theatre for a limited run of four weeks, beginning next Monday.

TREMONT THEATRE—Beginning next Monday at the Tremont Theatre, Marc Klaw will present his big musical comedy production, "Dere Mable," for an engagement of only three weeks.

PARK SHOWS ABSORBING FILM

At the Park Theatre yesterday was shown for the first time in Boston, perhaps the most remarkable film ever seen in this city, "Why Change Your Wife?" a Cecil B. De Mille production, which far outranks any photodrama previously put on the screen.

The story is a simple one, that of the matrimonial differences of a lawyer and his wife and their consequent divorce. The lawyer marries his chorus worker, who, through an accident, becomes reconciled to his first wife and returns to her.

To mention any one member of the cast would be most unfair to the others, although the work of Thomas Meighan, Gloria Swanson, Bebe Daniels and Theodore Kosloff stand out as being among the best performances of the year on the silver sheet Mr. Meighan, in the role of the lawyer, gives a performance which amply justifies the good things said of his ability in "The Miracle Man" and "Male and Female," while Gloria Swanson and Bebe Daniels portray two attractive women of entirely different sorts.

The staging is the most gorgeous and the gowns worn by the women make of "Why Change Your Wife?" a fashion show of no small long time, and perhaps will be a long time again, before Bostonians will have an opportunity of witnessing such an absorbing photoplay.

GAYETY THEATRE—It is seldom that a comedian "goes over" the Gayety as Lew Hilton did last evening. He proved such a scream that nothing short of a curtain call would satisfy the howling crowd. Nothing would do, either, but that Tenny Hilsbern and Babe Lotta (and chorus) should come back time after time and sing more of "Ain't Got the Blues."

GLOBE THEATRE—Patrons who visited Loew's Globe Theatre yesterday experienced a real thrill while witnessing "The Sign of the Rose" Elsie Janis release. The story is brimful of thrills and suspense and left no opportunity for a lull.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—Swift action, striking costumes, eccentric and ball room dancing, and hilarious comedy, are some of he characteristics of the current bill at Loew's Orpheum Theatre. "Married via Wireless" has been awarded the grand prize by Orpheum patrons as a nautical musical comedy with most elaborate mechanical scenery and excellent cast of players. Other numbers to win approval were Petepitto and Scott in an amusing farce, "The Mysterious Trunk;" Lillian Watson in a pleasing song revue and Seymour and Dupree in "The Two Midnight Hoofers."

COLUMBIA THEATRE—Buck Jones, a recent acquisition to the long list of Wm. Fox stars, delighted the patrons of Loew's Columbia Theatre yesterday, and as a real "wild westerner" bids fair to carry off all honors. The companion picture, "The Virtuous Vamp," starred as a vehicle to greater fame for Constance Talmadge.

HOPKINS AND BEACON—This week's program at the Modern and Beacon Theatres includes three feature pictures which are new to Bostonians—Wallace Reid in "Excuse My Dust"; Marguerite Clark in "Easy to Get" and Harold Lloyd in "Hand to Mouth." It is a comedy bill from start to finish and one which is bound to please the most exacting of photoplay fans. Mr. Reid's vehicle is an automobile racing story which combines speed with fun, while Miss Clark appears in a tale of a honeymoon mix-up.

WILCOX WRITINGS PUT UPON SCREEN

It took years of untiring energy on the part of Samuel Gordon, prominent Boston merchant, to acquire the world's rights of the writings of America's greatest poetess, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, and recently his efforts have culminated in the success of his obtaining absolute possession of the exclusive rights for the reproduction of all her famous writings, which are probably the greatest poems ever written by an American woman.

Mr. Gordon has just organized the Poets' Photoplay Company, and Arthur H. Ashley, the well known actor and screen star, who has long been connected with the World's Film Company, has become associated with Mr. Gordon in this new company and will be its vice-president and general manager.

IRISH TENOR IS WELL RECEIVED

Make Initial Operatic Appearance in Boston with Mary Garden in "Louise"

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

The biggest audience of the opera season turned out last night to hear Mary Garden in "Louise" and to witness the operatic debut in Boston of John O'Sullivan, the Irishman, who sings the French roles with the Chicago opera.

It was a brilliant audience, and an appreciative one, and it was favored by a spirited performance of a very interesting opera.

"Louise" is one of those modern, yellow, paper-covered French novels set to music. Accustomed as we are to fantastic costuming in opera, it is rather a shock to see Mary Garden, usually the magnificent courtesan, arrayed in shirtwaist and skirt as a demure Parisian working girl of the present day.

However, if Louise wears modern clothes, she belongs in the same category as Thais, Manon, Cleopatra, Chrysis, and the other wicked women whom Miss Garden portrays so well. Louise is very much cramped, living in modest quarters with her commonplace mother and her father, whose working clothes offend her taste and whose table manners are entirely unrefined.

HEEDS ADMIRER'S CALL.

Louise hears the tenor tones of an admirer outside her window and she heeds the call. Later we find her in a dressmaking establishment on the hill of Montmartre, and flirtation hooked up with a Bohemian gentleman, the same whose voice we heard in the first act, and who in this scene hails from Cork. There she sings "Depuis le Jour," the vocal gem of the opera, with the significance that only Mary Garden can put into that aria.

In the middle of a very noisy festival, where she is crowned queen of Montmartre, a very dubious compliment, her mother puts in an appearance, and Louise has to choose between love and duty. Her father is dying and needs her. This being an opera she picks duty and goes home. And then there is a tragic final act.

Charpentier's music has its moments of inspiration, but there is a great deal of bombast in it, and his organization is often rough and disagreeable. He manages, however, to write with good dramatic effect, and creates a great deal of true atmosphere.

ONE REALLY BIG PART.

There are many singers in the cast of "Louise," but only one really big part, the title. Miss Garden's impersonation has lost nothing in intensity and effectiveness and she colors the dramatic music of the role in a way that is her own secret.

O'Sullivan got a good reception in this city of Irish seal, and he deserved it. He is a fine, big-framed young fellow with fine tone, if in the typical French manner.

DUFRANNE PERFORMS WELL.

After all, "Louise" would be no part for an ordinary Italian tenor. O'Sullivan awoke lots of applause in his one big air.

Dufranne, as the father, gave a very admirable performance. It is a role that he has been playing since the Hammerstein days in New York and before and he has worked out a remarkable characterization. Cheseens as the mother sang and acted effectively. Myrna Sharlow sang the air of Irma with taste and skill. Constantin Nicolai as the coal picker sang the striking bits music of the little part admirably.

Society Prominent at Opera's Second Week

The second week of opera opened with a company which entirely filled the large playhouse and in which society had a large representation.

Mrs. Hayard Thayer in black satin and lace with diamond ornaments; Mrs. Stephen Van Rensselaer Crosby wearing brown satin and tulle with Mrs. E. Preble Motley in black satin; Mrs. Samuel D. Warren, black velvet; Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane also in black velvet, with her daughter, Miss Katharine Lane; Mrs. William A. L. Beasley in midnight blue brocaded velvet; Mrs. John K. Burgess in black satin with almost covered with white lace; and her daughter, Miss Barbara Burgess, in peacock blue satin with silver, were among those occupying orchestra stalls.

SOME BOX PARTIES.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Dumaresq, Mr. and Mrs. William L. McKee, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pitman and Mr. Clarence W. Barron who had Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bancroft with him, were of those entertaining box parties. Others there were Mrs. Franklin Hobbs in deep blue satin, with her daughter, Miss Rebekah Hobbs, a debutante of the Winter; Miss Helen Jaques in blue chiffon, with niece, Mrs. Bartol Parker in brown satin and tulle; Mr. and Mrs. R. Sohier Welch, Mrs. Welch wearing black velvet with a large diamond sunburst on the bodice; and Mrs. Randolph M. Appleton also in black velvet, with her daughter, Miss Sybil Appleton, in brown tulle over satin with touches of gold.

Mrs. Leverett Tuckerman, Mrs. Eben D. Jordan, Mrs. Elliot Morison, Mrs. Franz Zerrahn and her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Zerrahn, the Misses Bell and Edith Hunt, Mrs. Wolcott Howe Johnson, Mrs. Henry Harris, Mrs. Henry A. Rueter, Mrs. George H. Stoddard, Miss Margaret Stoddard, Mrs. James L. Huntington, Mrs. Frederick Moseley, Mrs. Grant Walker, Mrs. Alexander Whiteside and her sister, Mrs. E. Parkman Shaw Jr., and Mrs. Henry Parkman were of the large number wearing black velvet or satin with more or less coloring.

NEW AIRSHIP TO CROSS PACIFIC

Invention of Rhode Island Man Leads to Building of Giant Craft

New York, March 9.—Through an invention of Edson Gallaudet of East Greenwich, R. I., the United States, first to fly over the Atlantic, will soon have the additional honor of first flight across the Pacific Ocean, according to an announcement by the Manufacturers' Aircraft Association.

The flight is expected to be made by two huge multi-engined air craft, nearly twice the size of the NC-4, on the design of which naval constructors have been working for several months.

The plan became feasible through Mr. Gallaudet's invention which permits the coupling of three Liberty motors, to one 18-foot propeller, each engine being geared down so as to permit the propeller to function at its maximum efficiency. Mr. Gallaudet's plan provides for three separate power plants for each boat, each plant containing three high compression Liberty engines, or nine motors to each ship.

The association further stated that while no official announcement had been made by Great Britain, it understands that nation is also working on a big craft with which it hopes to make the flight.

The route charted for the proposed flight lies from San Francisco to Hongkong, China, with stops at Honolulu, Wake Island, Guam and Manilla. The entire distance is 7,416 nautical miles, with the first leg of 2,091 nautical miles the most difficult. It is said, however, that the new boats will be able to cover this leg in twenty-four hours.

FREE SPEECH RESOLVE WINS

Passed by Acclamation on Beacon Hill; to Be Sent to Congress

Massachusetts, birthplace of American freedom, again declares for free speech!

The Finkel free-speech resolutions, declaring for the immediate repeal of the war-time restrictions on free speech, free press and the right of free assembly, were adopted by the unanimous vote of the House of Representatives.

Not a word of objection was made against the resolutions. Their adoption was by acclamation.

Having passed the Senate, the resolutions will be sent to the law-makers at Washington as evidence that the State of Massachusetts wants no more of the muzzle laws.

The resolutions, presented by Senator Samuel B. Pinkel of Boston, say:

"That in view of the ratification of the peace treaty by a majority of the allied countries and the virtual ending of the great war, so happily consummated, the General Court declares its belief that the time has now come for the repeal and removal of all restrictions imposed for the duration of the war on the freedom of speech, the freedom of the press and the right of the people peaceably to assemble."

EXPECT ARLINGTON TAX RATE TO EXCEED $30

VITT THREATENS TO QUIT GAME IF SALARY DEMANDS ARE NOT MET

FOSTER OR WALTERS FOR BAG

None of Rookies Now With Red Sox Have Shown Enough Class for Job

By JACK CONWAY.

Hot Springs, Ark., March 8.—There are more breakers ahead for the Red Sox. Oscar Vitt, star third baseman, insists he will spend his Summer in California unless he is given a substantial salary increase.

It was learned on good authority that the Red Sox have offered Vitt $5,000. This is a considerable increase over the salary he received last year.

Ball players, however, are all demanding hefty advances in their pay checks. Maybe the fancy stipends turned down by some of the Cincinnati Reds have caused other players to believe they are merely getting taxi money.

Hard for Barrow to Fill Gap

If Vitt fails to come to terms with the Sox Barrow will have to plug up the hole at third base. The Californian is one of the best fielding third basemen in the league and a fair hitter. Consequently it will be a mighty difficult task to get somebody to fill his place.

Barrow hinted that if Vitt fails to come to terms by the latter part of the week, he will give Al Walters, the catcher, an opportunity to display his class at the hot corner of the diamond. Walters is a sterling fielder and fast and might develop into a first-class third baseman.

Then there is Eddie Foster, who played third base for Washington. Barrow, however, was planning on trying Foster out at second base. McNally, of course, could care for the keystone station if Foster were shifted to third.

Youngsters Do Not Shape Up Well

In such an event the Red Sox would not have a satisfactory utility infielder. There are several youngsters here working out in the infield, but none of them has displayed any fielding class. Eibel is a sweet batter, but he's no Scott or Jack Barry. The same can be said of Stack. The latter played on one of the Penn State teams last year.

"What did you bat for last year?" Barrow asked the rookie.

"Three hundred and fifty," shot back Stack.

The new infielder later confided to one of his fellow recruits that his batting average was really .450 in 1919, but he thought Barrow would think he was taking him for a big yidd if he were to give him the real dope. All of which is a long way from our original topic about the breakers which are pounding against the battered sides of Harry Frazee's baseball craft.

Schang Still Among the Missing

Schange is still among the missing. He's signed to a three-year contract. He now believes he should be tendered a new contract. The club management naturally believes the player should live up to the terms of his agreement. All of which is perfectly proper. Frazee seems to have outgeneraled several stars in getting them to sign three-year documents.

The players have one just kick. It is on the question of the number of games. Some of the men signed long-term contracts last year, when only 140 games were booked. Now the schedule has been increased to 154 games. They feel they are being asked to play fourteen more games without added compensation. The contracts are blanket affairs which cover the services of the player for the entire season. Under their terms it would be possible to play triple-headers if the management so desired.

Cut Salaries to Fit Schedule

When the schedule was cut from 154 to 140 games during the war, Frazee sent contracts to his unsigned players in which he reduced their salaries in proportion to the cut in the schedule. This move angered many of his stars, and they not only got their old salaries, but some of them. Carl Mays being the leader, tacked on $500 increase for good luck.

CADDOCK MUST WIN QUICKLY

Iowan Has Bet He Will Beat Draak More Quickly Than Stecker Did

Earl Caddock's offer to bet Tom Draak that he would defeat the Hollander at the Grand Opera House on Thursday night in faster time than it took Stecker to do the trick was snapped up by Draak in such a hurry that Gene Melody, manager of the "man of a pounnd holds," was stumped for a minute. He went through, however, and the cash was posted with Jack Curley in New York to be transferred to Boston.

As it took Stecker 1 hour and 16 minutes to win the first fall at Rochester and 40 odd minutes for the second, it looks as if Caddock will have to uncover every bit of his speed and cleverness to win his wager.

Draak is training hard for the match and in his present form is a tough fellow for anybody to tackle. They will go best two out of three falls to a finish.

ENGLISH BEATS LATIN ON EAST ARMORY TRACK

English High swamped Boston Latin, 50 to 27, in a dual track meet held on the East Armory. English began the races with a two-point margin, due to the broad jump and shot put, which netted the team 12 points to Latin's 10.

Although forced to read English High's numbers all the afternoon, the Latin boys returned a good account in most of the events. In the 50-yard hurdles, Captain Dan Whelton was conceded the tape in a canter, but in the final heat little Paul Myron of Boston Latin showed a surprising burst and was at Whelton's shoulder until the last fence was reached. Here, in the mad scramble, the Latin hope did not quite reach the top of the stick and stumbled, which lost him any chance he might have had of coming through.

To Battle Three Extra Rounds If Needed

Bobby Josepha and Chick Hayes, with a batting average of two wins each and two draws in six battles, are going to have it out for a final next Thursday evening at the Crescent A. C., Lowell. They are slated to go twelve rounds, and if the referee is unable to give a decision three more rounds will be fought and a winner announced.

TAD'S TIDBITS

FATTENING UP THE TURKEY.

Do you remember Percy Cove, the stringbean featherweight from Seattle?

Oh, he was the skinniest guy that ever lived, but he had a heart as big as a telephone booth, according to Ben Rosenthal.

Some years ago Percy came East to box and Ben took him under his wing. At that time the panic was on with Ben and his b. r. was very low. In Percy he saw a chance to grab some jack. He had his man weighed at a gym, and as he tipped the beam at 115½ pounds Ben thought it best to stick on a few pounds to strengthen him.

He sent Cove to Jimmy De Forrest's place at Long Branch, and for three weeks had him fed up on the fat of the land.

Then he got a letter from Cove which read:

"Dear Ben—I feel as strong as a horse and am as big as a house. Get me four or five fights right away. Will be up tomorrow."

Ben rushed down to the station to meet his warrior. Percy was as brown as an Indian and full of pep. He looked good to Ben. They went up to Bill Brown's gym to try out the scales. Percy stripped, jumped on the old Fairbanks and tipped the beam this time for exactly 116½ pounds.

The Six-Day Race.

Joe Folger, track manager of the six-day race, is just betting himself ragged on this meet. He has two suits of clothes bet already that Goullet and Magin beat the favorites, Egg and Root. Egg is a great Goullet bug. He'll take any old kind of a bet any old time that Goullet beats the world.

His Greatest Fighter.

Frank Stevens, who has more peanuts than Rockefeller has nickels, will not hear any one fighter named as a marvel until he first hears Ketchel's monicker pulled.

Frank thinks that Ketchel was the bravest, the toughest, the best-looking, the most dangerous, the most lovable, the—the—the—the—oh, everything!

It Ain't Right, Will.

Some guy sent Willie Meehan a postal card the other day, and on the back of it was printed in large blue type:

SOME FAT MEN ARE GOOD NATURED,
I SUSPECT,
BECAUSE THEY CAN NEITHER RUN NOR FIGHT.

Canada Cal's Chirps.

Someone has already said Wood was Presidential timber; but has anybody asked whether or not the Governor of Illinois' "boom" is a good 'un?

No, Gwendolyn, the man who acts as arbiter of the balls and strikes in a baseball game is not called a "vampire," but an "umpire." You may think that a vampire, being in one sense a "bat," has something to do with baseball. But no; you can see a vampire on any moving picture screen—that is, a human vampire. She is an adventuress, and separates fools from their money. The umpire leads an adventurous life, it is true, but he doesn't get any more money out of the game than is coming to him.

When a news reporter is assigned to get an interview he is instructed not to take "No" for an answer; but when a news film photographer goes after anything the more negatives he gets the better.

"It's a long time between drinks" has been superseded by "It's a long distance between 'smiles.'" All the way to Cuba, Mexico or Bimini, in the South, or to Montreal in the North.

Besides, "smiles" is a word that has a full "mile" between the first letter and the last.

CARPENTIER TO ARRIVE MAR. 20

French Champion and Bride to Set Sail Next Saturday; Ready to Fight

New York, March 8.—Georges Carpentier's marriage to Mlle. Georgette Eleasser in Paris and his plan to sail for the United States next Saturday revived interest here today in the much discussed Dempsey-Carpentier fight.

According to his present schedule, the French boxer is due to arrive in New York about March 20. He will be met at the docks by a young army of American promoters and managers seeking the services for the stage, the ring and the silent drama.

No less than half a dozen "authoritative" announcements have been made by Americans as to their claim to have first call on Carpentier's services.

His arrival here should settle several disputed points. The new Mrs. Carpentier has been strongly opposed to boxing, will not stand in the way of Carpentier's match with Dempsey, but indications today are that no match will be made until Dempsey is tried on charges that he violated the Mann act by the San Francisco Grand Jury.

M. Descamps, Carpentier's manager, will bring the European champion here prepared to negotiate with any promoter who has secured Dempsey's signature. It is believed in local boxing circles that Tex Rickard has Dempsey signed.

EXPLORER GUEST AT YACHTSMEN'S BANQUET

Rear Commodore Richard Hutchinson of the Boston Yacht Club gave a dinner at the Rowe's wharf house of the club to the flag officers and standing committees and invited guests, including Dr. Donald F. McMillan, the Arctic explorer.

Dr. McMillan gave an outline of his proposed trip of exploration along the coast and interior of Baffin land, on which he will start in the Spring of 1921 in his schooner, the Bavden, now lying especially built for the purpose at East Boothbay, Me. Dr. McMillan's schooner will fly the flag of the Boston Yacht Club throughout her voyage, which he expects may end in 1923.

Intercity Tennis Match Saturday

The Longwood Cricket Club tennis players meet the New York team at the Longwood indoor courts, Chestnut Hill, Saturday.

Originally it was planned to have the match an interclub affair between the Heights Casino of Brookline and the Longwood team. The decisive manner in which the Boston players overwhelmed their New York rivals in the recent match at Brookline caused a shift in plans so that an intercity tournament will be staged instead, giving the visitors a wider field from which to pick their racquet wielders.

The program of events calls for six singles and three doubles matches and these will bring together some of the country's most prominent exponents of the indoor game.

The selection of the visiting team has been turned over to the national committee and the list from which its representatives will be chosen includes the names of Beals C. Wright, Nelson M. Washburn, Ichiya Kumagae, Howard Voshell, Dean Mathey, Leonard Beekman, Frank T. Anderson, Julian S. Myrick and Dr. Sumner Hardy.

The first formidable list of tennis players will instill no fear in the Boston delegation for its team will be picked from such crack players as R. Norris Williams, Richard Harte, Nathaniel W. Niles, Harry C. Johnson, Irving C. Wright, W. E. Porter, Jr., Lawrence Rice, G. C. Caner, R. B. Bidwell and A. S. Dabney.

It will be the final event of the season on the indoor program and the calibre of the players expected to compose the opposing lineups makes it look to be the biggest attraction of all.

BRAVES' MAKEUP STILL PROBLEM

Stallings Must Have Better Weather Conditions to Try Out Rookies

By NICK FLATLEY.

Columbus, Ga., March 9.—When you can't get what you want, make the most of what you have. That's the Stallings system, now that the Braves have been practicing a week, and chances of getting desirable athletes from other clubs have vanished, at least until the race resolves itself.

Georgia George wanted to get a whole flock of players, but couldn't, so now he has rolled up his sleeves, metaphorically (it's too cold to do it actually), and set out to get the best from what he has.

What he wants now as much as anything is a break in the weather. It has been so chilly here that neither vets nor rooks have really cut loose. To be sure, the athletes have speeded up a bit, but nobody yet has put the real snap into it.

Must Pick Catcher From Four

Frinstance, the Braves have four untried catchers down here at camp—O'Neil, Ravin, Wallis and White. Not more than one will be retained, but at this time it is impossible to even guess at the lucky individual. Both Oswald and Wilson will start the campaign as the regular backstops.

Of the four others, just this is known—that O'Neil is a classy receiver, with plenty of pep, but lamentably weak with the bat. For him there's no room in hitting in prospect, to discover whether or not he will acquire a punch. He can't go over the hurdles until the pitchers have a chance to burn them.

As regards the other three, a trio of sturdy, heavy youths, there's this to be said. All look like hitters against early Spring pitching. The three of them have painful arms from too much ambition at the barrier, and the wings will not be in shape within a few days of genial sunshine.

None Appear to Be Real Stars

General appearances would augur that none of the receiving youngsters had the makeup of a star, but in baseball appearances are annoying as much as a college ice at a party in the good old days. So, before tipping the pulpitating universe about the Brave backstop situation, we will have to wait for warmth and sunshine.

Practice games are booked to start on the morrow, and will at least offer an opportunity for comparing the athletes under adverse conditions; said conditions being natural enough with the club for the past few years, but forgotten and banished now in the new era of things.

Manager Stallings is working along with Cy Morgan. Frank Pahoy and Ben Tincup, trying to develop a pitcher. His old-timers in a baseball way of speaking—Rudolph, Oeschger, Barnhart, Hearn and Oeschger—are taking things easy lest Dame Fortune, that fickle jade, get the dope on what a tough situation confronts the director when you stop to consider that little Ruby is the only one who has proved his worth in the big show.

All Have Looked Good in Spots

Pilliagim, McQuillan, Hearn and Oeschger have looked good in spots, but never have they gone through the big test. Unless some of those trades come through they will sure have a big burden when the Tigers are taken on, as Huggy Jennings is due for the infield, Hearn and Oeschger performers, and a horde of promising material, but only additions are happy, however, so apparent weakness isn't worrying G. H. Stallings. He will make a fight with a harmonious bunch and thankfully realizes that the Braves are at least that.

Hammering Hennery Gowdy is on the mend, and will be through here to those knowing him that's merely a sign that Hank is right in trim. He's booked for a hard work until Spring arrives.

SEVENTY CANDIDATES FOR CREW AT EXETER

Exeter, N. H., March 9.—Seventy candidates for the Exeter crew are working under Coach Corning Benton. Practice on the machines has started and will continue until it becomes possible to get onto the river. Five letter men, Captain S. B. Smith, French, Thomas, Kelley and Coxswain Stoddard are in the squad.

From the latter's squad are Bray, Gohey, Carnall, Fordyce, Ross, M. W. Hatch, M. E. Hatch, Fuller, Cornman, R. H. Smith, Spencer, Wheeler and D. L. Clinton.

The first date to be announced is April 22, with Andover School, at Exeter. A late season on the river is expected, as the ice is thick.

SIEGAL SET FOR SHEVLIN BOUT

Revere Battler Out to Win in Decisive Fashion at the Triple A Tonight

Nate Siegal of Revere, who has been going great guns since his return from over there, is all set to go over the top in his bout with Eddie Shevlin of Milwaukee at the Second round at the Casino A. C., Lynn, in the main bout at that club. Wilson knocked Murray down three times in the first round and Murray's seconds threw in the towel in the ring in the second round.

SEVENTY-SIX REPORT FOR HARVARD BASEBALL

Named as Winner, Boxer Declines

Buenos Aires, March 9.—Young Cohen of Boston, U. S. A. is nothing if not a sport—not even "feather-weight champion of the American Asiatic fleet," as he was billed when he entered the ring with Julio Perez, premier feather-weight of Argentina. The boys engaged in ten more or less strenuous rounds, the referee awarding the bout to Cohen. Immediately there was a protest from the Bostonian, who vehemently declared he did not lick Senor Perez, his gallant opponent, and could not accept the decision. Whereupon the referee, not knowing what else to do, called it a fifty-fifty affair amid the vivas of the assembled Argentinas.

POLICE WIN BOUT AT MANCHESTER

Kloby Kayos Gardner, but Chief Healy Declares Battle "No Contest"

Manchester, N. H., March 9.—Young Kloby, conqueror of Young Muggsy and many others, almost won a fight here. Indeed the referee was about to declare the Y. is champion the victor, when the police interfered and called the bout no contest.

Kloby had returned to his native town to show his mill against a boxer billed as Young Oscar Gardner of New York. Gardner was fat and no match for the Y. D. battler. The New Yorker did a flop in the opening round and had succumbed to one of Kloby's haymakers in the second session, when Chief of Police M. J. Healy stepped into the ring and declared the bout to be no contest.

Healy also said that no more boxing would be permitted in this city until the matchmakers saw fit to secure more suitable opponents for the men who were billed as headliners. Healy exonerated Young Kloby from suspicion of having been party to a frameup and placed the blame on the promoter.

THIS is the anniversary of the birth, in 1806, of Edwin Forrest, the American actor, who long occupied the front place on our stage. MRS. KANTOR surveyed the rooms where she and her husband, Leon, his smaller sister, his two slightly older brothers and an imbecile eldest brother managed to live. It was better than Ruggie and persecution, but it was far from comfort.

None of them had ever known anything different; it was work, work, work, with no hope on the horizon of their dreams. But their hardest time had passed. They owned a shop now and rich people from far away Fifth Avenue came to buy brasses supposedly from the Ukraine. They could afford to pay and the Kantors were accumulating the beginnings of a bank account.

Now and again they saw pictures in the papers of the homes of the rich filled with unattainable wonders, but it was too violent a stretch for the imagination to bridge the chasm between the crowded room with the cook stove and the splendor of soft rugs and big spaces.

Mother Kantor turned to the imbecile—he was twenty now and he sat like a statue in his wheel chair from morning till night, a vacuous look on his pale face, without interest in life, not caring whether he lived or died, not knowing what life or death meant.

His mother brushed her hand over her eyes as she looked and then, walking to him and taking from her apron a small feather she tickled his nostrils to see him smile as he used to smile when he was a mere child.

She shook her head; she had the true basis of persecution to thank for him; the long flight through bitter weather, privations and hunger. Sometimes she wondered why the beneficent God had not taken him, wondered with a shudder that she should wonder, and tried to make it up by added tenderness to son who was no son.

Lack of Money

More than once it occurred to her that he should not be there with the other children growing up, but she could see nothing even in this American, the land of the free; lack of money meant lack of luxury.

The children came in from the streets hungry, waiting for the arrival of Leon and his father. Seven candles were lighted in the candelabra and there was a cake. Their eyes turned greedily toward it. Leon's birthday was to mean something to them after all.

They were destined to wait for some time, growing impatient and hearing the pleas of their mother with ill-concealed grunts of displeasure.

Leon and his father, bent on a gift-purchasing tour, were not having the easiest time in the world. And it was really the boy's fault. Abrahm, with fifty cents clutched in the palm of his hand and the balance of the dollar in his pocket, was for buying something that by all the logic of childhood should please his seven-year-old offspring.

He ushered Leon into a shop where everything that could attract the eye of youth was displayed in alluring profusion. The hurried father produced a woolly dog whose ears wagged with almost lifelike motion, but Leon had eyes for something else.

In a fortunate moment for his father and himself he began to finger a violin marked with the pretentious price of five dollars.

His father seized his arm to distract him from this heresy, and seeing that his mind was set on something that would make a noise, held up a small concertina and tried in vain to lure him into the belief that such noises as it would insure for forty cents would satisfy even his hungry soul.

Leon refused to be comforted: he had seen the violin and he wanted it; he took it up and held it as though he had been familiar with it from the cradle. His father as a last resort tried the appeal of a toy bank, which registered every cent. Leon was deaf and blind.

Out of the Shop

Abrahm set the bank down with a sigh, and, grabbing the boy by the arm, hauled him out of the shop away from the unattainable violin. The fact that his son was mopping his eyes meant to him only disappointment at not being able to get what he wanted when he wanted it, a trait that seemed common to the American youth.

In this state of rebellion he pushed his seven-year-old ahead of him up the stairs to the waiting company of hungry children and into the presence of the smiling mother.

Leon went straight to her arms, and after the ungrateful manner of childhood, burst into tears.

His father stood looking at the dinner table and shrugged his shoulders with disgust. He had done his best, but continuing for a violin was asking a little too much.

He explained with gestures the cause of Leon's misery, and then marveled at the tears in the eyes of his wife.

Her mother was characteristic of her race. Even Leon was a little appalled. Even the children stopped their clamor for food.

"Thank God, if I come true, my dream's come true—he'll be a great musician. I dreamed it for years, and now it's come true—he'll make us all rich and he'll be famous."

Abrahm's imagination was not equal to this flight of fancy. He visualized the five dollars and his seven-year-old son and shook his head.

But Mrs. Kantor raised her eyes to heaven and seemed satisfied, patting the agitated boy while she assured him that he should have a violin then and there. Not a five-dollar one, not to begin with, but an old instrument that had long lain under the counter hidden from the curiosity of prying eyes.

Leon took his place at the table before the cake with the seven candles and, seeing in his honor, the clamor began anew; each helped himself; every one wrangled and Mrs. Kantor, beaming, came back with a rusty old instrument and a bow a good deal the worse for wear.

Leon Kantor went to bed that night on the cot he shared with his father and dreamed of violins—he even woke and felt under the cot to make sure the treasure was where he had left it, and then he dreamed some more—he was playing to a little girl with big eyes who held a cat under her chin and there was a great light shining all about them.

A Rude Waking

Abrahm woke and grumbled: "Go to bed; why you make this fuss over nothing?"

Mrs. Kantor stole away; the faith of the mother was in her heart, she felt great days ahead and her face took on the reflection of her exalted dreams.

There is nothing poetic about the atmosphere of Allen street in the early morning to stir the imagination; rather it presents a prosaic homily, whose essence is work. There are none of the picturesque toilers who wander through the streets of Montmartre with their wares and their cries. Instead, a jumble of sounds, the rattle of pushcart wheels, the crash of bottles on fire escapes, of men calling raucously, of elevated trains, of children who cannot sleep, of recriminations and bargainings.

The impartial sun filtering through the filthy panes in the eyes of little Leon Kantor and stirred him. He woke, made a hasty motion for his violin and cautiously crept up in bed held the instrument to his breast and began to draw the bow over the strings.

The first note roused his father, who sat bolt upright; the boy paid no heed, and the man starting to speak stopped himself. There was a rapt look on the child's face, and the sounds that came forth from the battered wooden shell calmed with their sweetness and held him speechless.

Perhaps the mother was right and the gift of the gods had descended on this son of his—he felt elated, suddenly lifted up—flesh of his flesh and bone of his bone—this boy at seven playing with never a lesson—such music.

He stepped out of bed sideways, as though fearing to be made his way to the back of the crowded room, and there, her eyes flooded with tears, he took the hand of the mother, and they stood together, breathless, virtualizing, the one the fulfilment of dreams, the other the fulfilment of hope.

Did they imagine it, or were the noises outside suddenly stilled

CHAPTER XXXVII.

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

LAURA greeted Ruth affectionately when she appeared at the Rodney home at 5 o'clock that afternoon.

"You dear thing! I am so glad to see you!" Laura exclaimed. "You are just in time to have a cup of tea up in the library with Hugh and me."

"Are you quite well again?" Ruth queried. "You had a bad time with your throat, didn't you?"

"Yes, but that is all over now, except that I still feel a bit wobbly." Laura smiled.

She was always bright and jolly when she had had a chance to be, and Ruth foresaw that her own task in this home would be lightened by Laura's presence. Already she was cheered by the girl's gay manner. If a part of this manner were assumed, it was but a proof of the sister's devotion to the brother. Everything seemed to centre about Hugh.

"Come upstairs and lay off your hat and coat," Laura commanded.

Girls Together

When the girls were together in Laura's room, Ruth spoke timidly.

"Are you sure, dear, that you will remember to address me as 'Doris' in Hugh's presence? It would never do to slip up on that, you know."

"Oh, I will be very careful not to make any mistake," Laura promised. "If I do forget, do not answer me."

"You think—don't you," Ruth asked anxiously, "that I will be able to keep Hugh from suspecting who I really am?"

"Yes I do," Laura assured her. "I never noticed before how much alike you sisters are in figure and voice. Now I can understand how you have been able to deceive Hugh. Were I in the dark, I would fancy that you were Doris—for your tone is just like hers. And your way of laughing is somewhat like hers, too. And Hugh—poor darling—is in the dark always, even when his eyes seem wide open."

Her voice trembled.

"There, there, dear!" Ruth soothed, putting her arms about her friend, "we must hope that he is going to get well, you know."

"But his sight"—Laura faltered.

An Optimistic View

"Even without that, he may be very useful in the world," Ruth insisted. "Your father has already told him that his presence in his office will be very valuable. Moreover, we must not look ahead."

Laura's face brightened. "You inspire one with courage, dear. No wonder Hugh wants you with him!"

But he does not want me—it is Doris he wants." Ruth corrected. "And it is up to me to keep him from suspecting. I am not she. Now shall we go to him?"

At the door of the library, Laura spoke her first lines in the little drama that was to be staged in this room.

"Come right in, Doris," she said clearly. "Hugh, here is a caller for you. I will order tea sent up—then I will come back and have it with you—if you do not mind."

When the portiers had dropped behind Laura, Ruth spoke.

"How are you feeling today, Hugh?" bending to kiss him on the forehead.

"You did not forbid my kissing you in a 'conventional way,' he reminded her teasingly. "So I am going to give you just one kiss whenever you come, and one when you go."

When he had carried out the first part of his threat he asked:

"Did Laura say she is coming back in here?"

"Yes, for tea with you and me," Ruth replied.

As a Woman Thinketh

By HELEN ROWLAND

Shall a Girl Propose?

Copyright, 1919, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THE question is no longer, "Shall a woman propose?"—but "HOW shall a woman propose?"

The women of England have announced from the housetops that it is not only proper, but necessary, in these days of shy bachelors and frightened bachelor girls, that a girl shall ask a man to marry her.

Very well, then—Pass the hemlock!

But HOW shall she do it?

Shall she say:

"Harold, darling, will you make me the happiest woman in the world?

"Will you let these little hands lift the burdens of life from your fair young shoulders, and scatter your pathway with roses?

"Will you let me support you in the style to which you have not been accustomed, and provide you with that luxurious background which your lovely and exotic personality demands?

"Will you let me buy you monogrammed cigarettes and all-silk hose and a racing car, and pay your club dues and your poker debts?

"Will you give me the right to protect you from wild women and designing flappers, and unscrupulous chorus girls?

"Will you give me the right to pull the hair of any woman who dares to stare at you or refuses to lure you to wicked pink teas?

"Say yes, dear heart, and I promise you shall never have to lift your languid hand—not even to bind your 'backless' evening gowns!"

Ridiculous?

Not at all! When you invite a man to dine with you, you furnish the dinner, don't you? When you invite him to a dance, you furnish the lights and the music and the flowers and the ballroom.

Then, when you invite him to marry you, why shouldn't you furnish the apartment and pay the bills and the income tax?

It's only POLITE!

Or perhaps you might go to him with a "reference," and say:

"I see that you are lonely, Mr. Lochinvar. What you need is a home and a housekeeper—somebody to take care of you. Let me be your cook-valet-and-femme de chambre. I will take the job in exchange for my board, clothes and pin money. No washing, and Thursdays and Saturdays off!"

Because, when you make an offer of marriage, you simply MUST have something to OFFER.

And a kiss has not yet been recognized as a medium of exchange.

Dear, dear! It looks as though we should have to go right on blindfolding them, and hypnotizing them, and backing them into matrimony—and making them think it was all their own idea, doesn't it?

What's the use of being an "advanced girl, anyway—as long as men insist on being aboriginal, and mid-Victorian, and all that!

"What's in a Name?"

By MILDRED MARSHALL

Copyright, 1919, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

ALICE

ALICE, curiously enough, is a man's name, not a woman's.

Originally, it was given to the sons of the family, and is, without doubt, derived from the Anglo-Saxon Adelgis, of which the feminine form was Adelgise. It means noble, in both its masculine and femine forms.

It is clear that Alice represents Adelgis and not Adelgise, and that the feminine form would be Aliza. Some believe that Eliza, generally thought to be a derivative of Elizabeth, is this missing form. For proof of Aliza as the representative of Adelgiza, the Liber Vitae of Durham records the changes in Adelgiza from the first noble lady of that name, who laid her gifts upon the altar. By contraction, it became by steps Adeliza, Aaliza and Aliza.

Aaliza is still given to daughters of noble families in Europe. Adalis, Adiliz and finally Alis, are other contractions. Alicia is a derivative which represents an effort at euphony lacking in Alisa, but Alison is not so derived as is popularly supposed, but has a completely different origin.

Alice is purely English, with a slight Teutonic flavor, since another explanation of its origin is that the name is derived from the feminine Adalbert or Adelchen, signifying "daughter" in Frankland. Alix or Alisa in Lombardy was naturalized in England when Alix la Belle married Henry I.

Alexandrite is the talismanic stone of Alice. It is found in the emerald mines of Russia, and its splendid green which changes pulsatingly to columbine red, makes it representative of the Russian national colors, and, therefore, honored as a national stone. The Russians believe that it brings great fortune. It denotes hope, and, when dreamed of, indicates much to look forward to. Monday is Alice's lucky day and No. 7 her lucky number. Her flower is the white hawthorne, which means hope.

Alice has been traditionally surrounded by all the virtues and simplicity which man is supposed to desire in woman. Indeed, the name is poetically sybonomous with "Virtue Blue." It has been immortalized in the old song "Ben Bolt":

"Oh, do you remember Sweet Alice, Ben Bolt;
Sweet Alice with hair so brown;
Who thrilled with delight when you gave her a smile,
And trembled with fear at your frown?"

THE YOUNG DIANA

An Experiment of the Future

Story of Extraordinary Mystery, in Which the Heroine Holds Key to Youth and Beauty

By MARIE CORELLI.

What Has Gone Before

Diana May, daughter of well-to-do commonplace parents, had had her love affair when the story opens with an officer with "expectations." After waiting seven years, the "expectations" were realised and the loved one promptly threw her over for a fairer and younger partner. Diana had spent her life in wondering. She had read books on psychology, natural and physical laws and on evolution and the selection of the species, but she was unable to determine why she came in or how she was to get out. The May family retires to Rose Lea, an estate on the coast of Devon, where Diana delights to ramble through the gardens.

"YOU are old enough now," was the phrase that jarred upon Diana's inward sense, like the ugly sound a clanking chain in a convict's cell. "You are old enough now." Well, it was true!—she was "old enough"—but she had taken this "oldness" upon her while faithfully waiting for her lover. And he had been the first to punish her for her constancy! It was very strange. Indeed, it was one of those many things that had brought her to her chronic state of wonderment.

The great writers—more notably great poets, themselves in the most fickle of men—eulogized fidelity in love as a heavenly virtue. Why then, when she had practiced it, had she been so sorely rewarded? Yet, since the rupture of her engagement, and the long and bitter pain she had endured over this breaking up of all she had held most dear, her many studies and her careful reading had gradually calmed and strengthened her nature, and she was able to admit to herself that there were possibilities more than the loss of a heartless lover who might have proved a still more heartless husband. She felt no resentment towards him, and his memory now scarcely moved her to a thrill of sorrow or regret. She only asked herself why it had all happened?

Of course there was no answer to such a query—there never is. And she was "old enough"—yes, quite "old enough" to put away all romance and sentimentality. Yet, as she walked slowly in the garden among the roses, and watched the sea sparkling in the warm afterglow of what had been an exceedingly fine sun-setting, the old foolish craving stirred in her heart again. The scent of the roses, the delicious breathings of the Summer air, the flash of the sea-gulls' white wings skimming over the glittering sands and pools—all these expressions of natural beauty saddened while they entranced her soul. She longed to be able to share them, sharing their life, and imparting to others something of their joy.

"They never grow old!" she said, half aloud. "Or if they do, it is not perceived. They seem always the same—always beautiful and vital."

Here she paused. A standard rose tree weighted with splendid blossom showed among its flowers one that had been cramped and spoiled by the overprofusion and close pressure of its companions—it was decaying amid the eager crowd of bursting buds that looked almost humanly anxious to be relieved of its presence. With soft, deft fingers Diana broke it away from the stem and left it drop to earth.

"That is me!" she said. "And that's what ought to become of me! Nothing withered or ugly ought to live in such a lovely world. I am a blot on beauty!"

She looked out to sea again. The after-glow had almost faded; only one broad line of dull gold showed the parting trail of the sun.

"No—there's no hope!" she murmured, with an expressive gesture of her hands. "I must plod on day after day in the same old rut of things, doing my duty, which is perhaps all I ought to ask to do—trying to make my mother comfortable and to keep my father in decent humor—and then—then—when they are gone, I shall be alone in the world. No one will care what becomes of me—even as it is now no one cares whether I live or die!"

This is the discordant note in many a life's music—"no one cares." When "no one cares" for us, we do not care about ourselves or about anybody else. And in "not caring" we stumble blindly and unconsciously on our only chance of safety and happiness. A heartless truth—but a truth all the same. For when we have become utterly indifferent to Destiny, Destiny, like a spoiled child, does all she can to attract our notice, and manifests a sudden interest in us of which we had never dreamed. And the less we care the more she clings!

CHAPTER II.

DIANA was "old enough," as her recalcitrant self had informed her, to value the blessing of a good night's rest. She had a clear conscience—she was indeed, as years add, in these days, a perfectly innocent-minded woman, and she slept as calmly and peacefully as a child.

When she woke to the light of a radiant morning, with the sunshine making diamonds of the sea, she felt almost young again as she tripped to and fro, putting the final touches of taste to the pretty drawing-room and giving to every nook and corner that indefinable air of pleasant occupation which can only be bestowed by the hand of a dainty, beauty-loving woman. At the appointed hour the automobile was sent to the station to meet Mr. and Mrs. James Polydore May, and punctual to time the worthy couple arrived, both husband and wife slightly out of humor with the heat of the fine Summer's day and the fatigue of the journey from London.

PLEDGE ITALIAN LOAN $30,000

Premier Nitti Cables from Abroad Urging Support of Campaign Here

Premier Francisco Nitti of the Italian Cabinet today cabled this country urging support of the Italian loan campaign here.

More than $30,000 was subscribed or pledged at the mass meeting in Faneuil Hall, and reports from various places throughout the Commonwealth indicate that the loan is being well supported.

Meetings will be held throughout New England today, including a big demonstration in Portland, Me., and several meetings in Connecticut.

It is expected that more than the allotted $25,000,000 will be raised in the United States through purchase of the 7 per cent. bonds. All money collected will be spent here on machinery and tools, of which there is a dearth in Italy.

Try This If You Have Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—Advertisement.

New Hair Growth After BALDNESS

On legal affidavit, John Hart Brittain, business man, certified to this: "My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. The scalp was shiny. An expert said that he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth. "Yet now, at an age over 60, I have a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair! No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photographs. Mr. Brittain certified further:

INDIAN'S SECRET OF HAIR GROWTH

After hair growth.

"At a time when I had become discouraged at trying various hair lotions, tonics, specialists' treatments, etc., I came across, in my travels, a Cherokee Indian 'medicine man' who had an elixir that he asseverated would grow my hair. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement a light fuzz soon appeared. It developed, day by day, into a healthy growth, and ere long my hair was as prolific as in my youthful days.

That I was astonished and happy to supersede my state of mind wildly, but mildly expressed, is putting it mildly. Obviously, the hair roots had not been dead, but were dormant in the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the mysterious pomade. I negotiated for and came into possession of the principle for preparing this mysterious elixir, now called Kotalko, and later had the recipe put into practical form by a chemist.

That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proved."

How YOU May Grow YOUR Hair

It has been proved in very many cases that hair roots did not die even when the hair fell out through dandruff, fever, alopecia other hair or scalp disorders. Thus Miss A. D. Otto reports: "About 8 years ago my hair began to fall out until my scalp in spots was almost entirely bald. I used everything that was recommended but was always disappointed until at last I came across Kotalko. My bald spots are being covered now; the growth is already about three inches." C. W. Mitchell reports: "I had spots completely bald, over which hair is now growing since I used Kotalko." Mrs. Lillian Farrell reports: "The whole front of my head was as bald as the palm of my hand for about 15 years. Since using Kotalko, hair is growing all over the place that was bald." Many more splendid reports from satisfied users.

For women's hair.

Washington, March 8.— "Rediscounting of Liberty Bonds by the Federal Reserve Bank at five per cent, is throwing these bonds on the market and depreciating their value," Senator Smith, Democrat, of South Carolina, declared in the Senate. The people have suffered a loss of 1,750,000,000 in Liberty Bonds," Senator Owen of Oklahoma added. "It has been caused by the inflation of interest charges on commercial loans."

RAILS RALLIED, STEELS OFF

Motors and Oils Mixed as to Price Changes; Market Very Active

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, but the majority were showing gains. The rally by rails was the second hour feature. Leading carriers rose from one to two points. Motors and oils were mixed as to price changes, but were higher on the whole. Steels were weak, excepting Crucible.

Largest gains for the morning were made by General Motors and Crucible. The market was very active, first hour transactions totalling nearly half a million shares.

Call money renewed at 8 per cent. The preliminary rate for demand sterling was 3.53½, off 5¾ cents.

INDUSTRIALS IN THE LEAD.

The market was strong at the opening, gains ranging from fractions to several points. General Motors showed the largest, advancing eighteen within half an hour. Crucible came next, climbing thirteen in thirty minutes, including recovery of the two-point loss it showed on its initial sale. But the list did not soar with these leaders. In fact, some steels showed early losses and a few points was about the maximum for all discussions. Demand by shorts was said to be the main reason why stocks went up. Rails had a heavy tone on the whole, and equipments an irregular movement although they averaged strong. As a group motors had the most strength although some receded. Shipping shares were quiet. Specialties were not much in evidence, activity and decided strength being confined to comparatively few issues.

PUBLIC NOT ALLURED.

Trading was as professional as it has been at any time this year. The sensational slump and spectacular rally of Monday was more alarming than alluring to the public. The situation this morning called for as much trading ability as acumen. By the end of an hour the market bordered on being irregular, gains having been reduced or eliminated.

There was a brisk demand for stocks in the loan market after the close yesterday. Monday's session was memorable for both sides and left many cribbles in its wake. Adds from its temporary effect the Supreme Court decision that stock dividends are not taxable on that stock dividends are not taxable now save the bulls courage and tamed bears somewhat. Around financial district it is construed as offering great encouragement to capital.

CAPITAL IS ENCOURAGED.

Coming after the ruling that the U. S. Steel Corporation is not an illegal organization and legislation which framed to give railroads a chance to make a fair profit on operations, it is felt that the tide has turned and that vested rights are going to get more consideration and protection generally. This is sufficient basis for a bull movement no doubt, provided that there is second improvement in the money situation to finance one. Funds are lacking at present, however, and there is no prospect of any radical improvement in that respect for some time.

The West is no longer flush. The decline of $27,000,000 in Chicago bank deposits in about three months and increase of loans and discounts of $85,000,000 indicates some change in the Western situation.

STOCK DIVIDEND TAXABLE HERE

Massachusetts Law and U. S. Supreme Court Decision on Income Conflict

Stock dividends will remain taxable income in Massachusetts, despite the decision of the United States Supreme Court that they are not taxable under Federal law.

This was the announcement today by State Income Tax Commissioner Irving L. Shaw, who bases his action on decisions by the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

Confusion and annoyance were foreseen as a result of the conflict of opinion as to the taxable nature of stock dividends which has arisen between State and national courts.

It was predicted today that Massachusetts law might be amended by the Legislature to bring it into line with Federal practice.

The Supreme Court yesterday declared, five to four, that provisions of the Federal Income Tax law making stock dividends taxable, were unconstitutional. Under this ruling all collections made under the provisions were illegal, and it is estimated that the government will be forced to return $100,000,000 collected in taxes.

Wall Street had been confidently expecting yesterday's decision, but its chance appeared today. This expectation has been a big factor in the trading since.

The first result of the ruling is expected to be a general tendency on the part of big concerns to refuse to declare big dividends. Declaring dividends has been an unpopular pastime since the Federal income tax law first went into effect, financiers preferring to spend their money in improvements, higher salaries and even higher wages rather than turn it over to the government.

State Income Tax Collector Shaw in explaining his stand said:

"The Supreme Court decision does not involve the interpretation of Massachusetts law. It can have no immediate effect here.

"The question as to the taxation of certain stock dividends was raised in the case of Gardner vs. the Tax Commissioner, and the Supreme Court of Massachusetts decided that these stock dividends to be taxable under the provision of Chapter 269 of the Acts of 1916.

"The State Income Tax Commissioner has followed the decision of the State Supreme Court and will do so until it is overruled or the law which it interprets is amended."

Thousands Made Rich by Tax Laws, Says Gronna

Washington, March 9.—That the present revenue law has brought about the creation of thousands of millionaires by reason of the low rate of taxation on war profits was charged in the Senate by Senator Gronna of North Dakota.

During the consideration of the Simmons-Kitchin measure today, Senator Gronna was one of the group which demanded a tax of $6 per cent on all profits derived from war contracts. If this had been done, Senator Gronna asserted, the present conditions would have been averted.

He declared there are 23,000 millionaires in the country, according to the best calculations, while interest is high. Liberty bonds are low and speculation is indulged in on every hand, with the result that the cost of living has been steadily advanced.

Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, said speculation could be stopped by raising the rates on call loans. He offered a resolution, which the Senate adopted, asking the Federal Reserve Board to explain the causes of the present "injurious rates of interest on call loans in the financial centers."

Replying to Senator Gronna, Senator Simmons defended the revenue act, saying that if the taxes had been raised in the form proposed by Senator Gronna and his associates, the industries of the United States would have been so crippled that winning of the war would have been impossible.

FIVE-YEAR CHASE AFTER ELOPERS ENDS IN COURT

Hartford, Ct., March 9.—After five years of following his wife and the man he claims broke up his home, Edward Casserally of Jersey City, N.J., faced the criminal court here today. Mrs. Casserally and John Shea were arrested on statutory charges. The Casserallys have three children who are with the mother. The woman's father, said to be one of the oldest patrolmen in Jersey City, has been sent for.

CANNED BACON AND PEAS PUT ON SALE

Canned bacon and canned peas were placed on sale in combination lots today at the army retail stores. A 12-pound can of bacon, in combination with six cans of peas, was being sold at $8.25. The largest quantities of bacon was offered at $2.75, but the sale of peas was limited to a case of 24 cans to a customer.

FOURTEEN FINED $5 EACH FOR SPITTING

Fourteen men were fined $5 each in municipal court today for expectorating in subway stations. Cosmino D. Nicastro, an attorney, one of the accused, did not plead guilty and defended himself. He was found guilty by the court. The arrests were made by E. T. & T. E. Smith, inspectors for the Board of Health.

SLAYER SAMMARCO IN SOLITARY CONFINEMENT

Joseph Sammarco, murderer of Policeman William G. Clancey, spent today in solitary confinement in the Charlestown Prison, under the law that all life prisoners must spend their first twenty-four hours in solitary. Tomorrow he will be assigned work in one of the prison shops.

HOLD BROTHERS IN HEAVY BONDS FOR R. R. THEFTS

Providence, March 9.—Joseph and Fred Morelli of Marietta street are held in bonds here aggregating $35,000 each under indictments returned by the Federal grand jury in connection with alleged thefts from the New Haven Railroad during the past year.

State Supreme Court Bars Alimony Suit

Mrs. Eva L. Golder cannot enforce in Massachusetts an action to recover on the judgment obtained in the Supreme Court of Maine for $800 against her husband, Louville O. Golder, as alimony in a divorce suit, according to a decision of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts.

Golder raised no question as to the validity of the judgment, but claimed the action could not be maintained because brought by a married woman against her husband.

The Supreme Court says if an absolute divorce decree had been entered, the remedy at law would have been complete, but in the absence of such a decree the parties are husband and wife, and the common law bars recovery. The court further says the question whether Mrs. Golder could proceed in equity was not before it.

The Symphony Orchestra Must Be Preserved Unimpaired

Everybody in Boston, including the trustees, the musicians and the public, desires that the Boston Symphony Orchestra be preserved.

By the Boston Symphony we mean this orchestra that we have now, the one hundred superb musicians, the conductor and the management.

If the trustees permit twenty or thirty or fifty or seventy of the present players to depart, and replace them with others, the result will not be the Boston Symphony that we love and admire. It will be another orchestra and if it continues under the present name it will be travelling under false pretenses.

It will not take the music-loving public very long to discover that there is little left of the world's greatest orchestra besides the name, and they will not patronize it.

On the other hand, the players, if they should secede in a body and endeavor to perpetuate their organization, would discover that without the guiding direction of the regular management they could not possibly secure patronage.

Men who can play musical instruments so skillfully as to perform symphonic music well are exceedingly scarce. Such talent is the result of many years' arduous labor. If a violinist in the Boston Symphony finds that he is earning less than that which will support his family properly he cannot be blamed if he ceases to admire the dignity of his position.

Times have changed, and the Symphony trustees have got to change with them or admit to the shade of Major Higginson that they are incapable of carrying on the great orchestra they so cheerfully took off his hands.

Boston can afford to pay her musicians as well as Detroit, Philadelphia or New York. The trustees can go confidently before the public next season and obtain the money with which to give the players a proper living wage.

Let the orchestra and the trustees remember that the public supports this Symphony Orchestra and wants its personnel preserved, unimpaired.

Have Landlords Agreement to Raise Rents?

The American's revelations of profiteering landlords who order out present tenants that they may increase their rents to future tenants, and thus evade the charge of profiteering, have given a new lease of life to the work of the Commission on the Necessaries of Life.

Following the expose of this new method of profiteering by landlords complaints have poured in to the commission. These complaints show such a unanimity of method by landlords in adjacent sections of the city as to cause speculation as to whether certain landlords had not entered into agreement to raise rents through ordering tenants to vacate. Such agreement, if proved, would border perilously on conspiracy.

The check put on this class of landlords by the commission in ruling that a tenant shall not be forced to vacate until he shall have had a reasonable opportunity to find another place of abode alone justifies the creation of this commission.

Important as is the need of such a commission in the coming Spring and Summer, the outlook now is that it will be much more necessary by next Fall. Rentpayers will avoid the house-hunting issue to some extent with the coming of mild weather and seek places at the beach and in the country.

But when they return in the Fall, then will come the real reckoning. Real estate authorities expect that at that time there will be such a demand for rents that many will be forced to go homeless.

Busy as the Commission on the Necessaries of Life may be this Spring and Summer it would be a public calamity should rentpayers be without its protection against rapacious landlords next Fall.

Don't Give Up Logic Till Man Knows a Few Things

There has been some talk of eliminating the study of logic from the curricula of several colleges on the ground that unless the student's mind is naturally logical it cannot be made logical, and that the study of logic, in most cases, is a waste of time. If the premise and conclusion of this argument are correct it is a great pity. What this country needs more than anything else is logic.

We went into the war to make the world safe for democracy. We won the war—or the war was won—and the world was made safe for democracy. So why worry?

Maybe we merely thought we were fighting to make the world safe for democracy and were, in reality, fighting for something else. If that event, how did we happen to deceive ourselves? And what were we fighting for? And did we win or lose? And if so, WHAT?

On the other hand, maybe the war is still on. Maybe democracy is perfectly safe without anybody knowing it. Maybe democracy is merely traveling around the world, like a Cook's tourist, just seeing the sights, doing a bit of shopping and taking a rest.

There is still another possibility. Maybe we never rightly knew just what democracy is. Maybe the suppression of free speech and a free press, the ousting of lawfully elected officials, the invasion of personal liberty and the exercise of autocratic, unconstitutional power constitute democracy.

By all means let our young men keep on studying logic. If in half a century one of them turns out to be a Socrates who can explain these matters the whole undertaking will be worth while.

MAYBE YOU remember.
ABOUT THE dog.
WHOSE NAME was Jeff.
AND LIVED on the ranch.
AND I wrote of him.
WHEN THE rancherman.
SOUGHT TO give him away.
TO ANOTHER ranch.
MANY MILES removed.
AND THEY took him there.
AND TWO days later.
HE WAS back again.
ALL TIRED out.
AND COVERED with mud.
BUT NOT too tired.
TO WAG his tail.
AND BARK his joy.
THAT HE was back.
AND THEY sent him away.
FOR THE second time.
AND TWO days passed.
AND FROM out of a field.
THAT HAD been ploughed.
AND WAS close to the house.
WE HEARD Jeff's whine.
AND HE was there.
AND AROUND his neck.
THEY HAD tied a rope.
AND ONE end dragged.
AND HE'D come back home.
AND LAY out there.
IN THE rough ploughed field.
AND WHINED his plea.
THAT WE let him stay.
AND HIS great brown eyes.
LOOKED UP at us.
AND THE prayer they said.
WENT STRAIGHT to the heaven.
OF ALL good dogs.
WHOSE HEAVEN lies.
IN THE master's heart.
AND THEY let Jeff stay.
AND JUST today.
THE THREE of us.
THE NEPHEW boy.
AND THE good dog Jeff.
AND THE master's friend.
AS JEFF sees me.
HAVE BEEN away.
ACROSS THE creek.
AND UP the hill.
WHERE BROAD fields lie.
AND MOST of the time.
I CARRIED the boy.
AND AT other times.
I LAID me down.
IN THE bright sunlight.
AND FELT its warmth.
WHILE THE good dog Jeff.
AND THE nephew boy.
JUST ROLLED around.
AND THE nephew boy.
MAULED THE good dog Jeff.
AND PULLED his tail.
AND POKED his fingers.
IN JEFF'S brown eyes.
AND POOR old Jeff.
NEVER WHIMPERED once.
BUT I am sure.
THAT A selfish dog.
IF THERE be one.
WOULD HAVE lain in the sun.
ALONG WITH me.
AND ENJOYED himself.

I THANK you.

Letters to the Editor

Victim of Rent Profiteer

Editor Boston American:

The article in the American in regard to profiteering, money-hungry landlords happens to interest me very much. I am one of their victims. The tenement that I have occupied for the last six years in Allston district has recently been sold to one of these real estate jugglers and transferred by them to another straw, who notifies us that our rent is to be increased 50 per cent., or from $50 to $75 per month, and when we make a protest we are told to either pay or get out. It seems to me that there ought to be a law enacted to put such money grabbers where they belong, but the chain-gang is too good for them. G. A. K.

Deserves Great Credit

Editor Boston American:

In these days of readjustment, when so many plans are being brought forward by reformers and job-seekers to place the American people back on a peace basis of economic, religious and social content, I feel that some of the more important movements that have arisen have not received the credit due them.

May I at this time congratulate you and the American for the splendid articles that you have been publishing on the subject of soldier legislation. I have followed with great interest the writings of your Mr. Charles O. Power and they have been discussed much by my friends. To me it seems as if such articles, designed to inform the four millions of men and women who served in the recent war on subjects of vast importance to them and their families, have a unique place at the present time.

A contented body of young manhood and womanhood, who have proven their right to be called Americans, should do much to allay the unrest that is so prevalent at this moment. By such articles as those of Mr. Power you have earned the gratitude of thousands and thousands of these veterans. These men and women look to you to continue this good work, already inaugurated so well.

As a member of the legislative committee of the Massachusetts Department, American Legion, I want you to know that the articles of Mr. Power have been greatly appreciated by me. This feeling has likewise been voiced by many of the members of the American Legion who are my colleagues in the State Legislature.

DANIEL J. MARSHALL.
Representative, Fifteenth Worcester District.

Against Censorship

Editor Boston American:

Let me thank the American personally and in behalf of the Professional Women's Club (650 members), which I founded, as well as the Film, and several other clubs, for giving space in Saturday's issue to my leaflet against censorship of motion pictures. Whoever wrote the introduction did not quite know my connection with clubs, but that does not matter one bit—the readers do. I wonder where you acquired that awful picture. Bachrach and White have quite new negatives, with "squeegie" prints free to the press.

It is "bully" in you to take the stand you have on this iniquitous bill against which I spoke on Tuesday last. I wish that your reporter had emphasized the gist of my remarks there. I wound up by saying that we hope the bill will be "nipped in the bud." Tried to get extra copies last night, but failed. Yours for a free press and free screen.

MARION H. BRAZIER.
Member of Roosevelt Republican Club and honorary member American Legion for distinctive war work at home.

"The Third Degree"

Editor Boston American:

I want to protest against "The Third Degree" practiced on persons arrested. Why should statements secured thus be accepted as evidence? J. J. STEARNS.

THE GOLDEN NUMBER IN CYCLE OF TIME

By Garrett P. Serviss

"A number of years ago you wrote about the 'Golden Number.' I would like to have you explain that again.—Farmer Boy."

THE Golden Number, so called because it is said to have been engraved each year on a golden tablet at Athens, in the fifth century, B. C., represents the place that any particular year occupies in the "lunar cycle," the latter being a period of nineteen years, at each renewal of which the phases of the moon return to the same dates as in the preceding cycle.

The first cycle is assumed to have begun with the new moon that occurred on January 1 in the year 1 B. C. If any year falls on the opening year of the cycle, its golden number is one, and similarly if it falls on the closing year of the cycle its golden number is 19. In order to ascertain what golden number belongs to a particular year add 1 to the figures representing that year and divide the sum by 19; the remainder, if there be any, is the golden number of the year, and if there be no remainder the golden number is 19. Thus, take 1920, add 1, making 1921; divide by 19 and the remainder is 2, which is the golden number for the year 1920.

The golden number is used in the ecclesiastical calendar to ascertain the date of the Easter full moon. For this purpose a table is constructed, usually printed in prayer-books, by means of which, if you know the golden number showing the place of the year in the table, you can see at a glance on what date the full moon next after the 21st of March occurs (it may occur on March 21), and the Sunday following that full moon will be Easter. This year Easter falls on April 4, a day after the full moon.

WHEN THE FURNITURE IS NEW.

It is a wonderful thing to start housekeeping in a new house, new furniture, new neighborhood.

There are no regrets behind you, only a keen sense of looking forward.

How hard you all try to keep the first scratch off the new piano or the front stairs.

Every morning you get up with high hopes and great plans for a new day.

Every evening you are gloriously tired, but happy in accomplishment.

Just as long as you can stay united on the same ambition to keep a happy home it will be a joyous realization.

But let one or the other member of the family show the "don't care" spirit, or jealousy of the better things someone else has, and just then there is bound to be a wedge which will end in regrets.

Don't be so self-satisfied that you cannot see improvements as you need them.

Don't be so selfish that you cannot cheerfully do more than your share toward the family good at any time.

Don't be so ungrateful or unmindful that you can allow anyone of the family to have to keep up extra work to save you, when it becomes possible for you to take care of your duties again.

Today

Pulling the Wishbone To Save a Billion Who Will Get It? Causes, Not Symptoms

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1920.

Organized money gets the long end of the wishbone in recent Supreme Court decisions.

They got it the other day in the steel trust decision.

Today, what is infinitely more important to the great money-making concerns, they get a decision that will allow the trusts of the country to distribute without taxation billions made during the war and held, waiting a chance to distribute them, income tax free.

A corporation pays its profits, through dividends, to stockholders. The stockholder whose income is so big that he must give 60 or 60 per cent. of it back to the government contracts with the corporation in which he owns stock.

He says to that corporation, "Don't give me my money now, for I would have to hand it to the government. Keep it. I will tell you when to give it."

Then a good scheme was invented. Instead of paying money, the plan was to give out more stock. If you had one share of stock in a big trust, they gave you one or two more. Then the stockholders said to the government, "You can't tax us, this isn't income money, it's only stock. Nobody knows how much it is worth."

The Supreme Court decides that the objection is sound.

Gigantic profits made by corporations during the richest profiteering period will be distributed in the shape of new stocks, the prosperous individuals who got the stock will pay no income tax to the government, as income tax represents solid wealth.

Little people will pay more to make up for the deficit. This is a good country for everybody, and particularly good for the man with fifty to a hundred millions, who doesn't want to pay his share of taxes.

A scientist of established reputation announces a plan for using earth magnetism to prevent decay of food. The invention will make it possible to transport fresh vegetables without decay and without use of ice.

"At least one billion dollars of annual waste will be prevented."

Inasmuch as we live on a great magnet, the earth, it was about time for somebody to use the power locked up in our great driving wheel.

But the ordinary man will not profit to any great extent by the proposed saving of a billion dollars or ten billion dollars. When new wealth is created or money saved, the additional profit goes to those that understand getting profit.

Sewing machines, machinery for making cotton goods, steam engines in place of horses, electric light in place of whale oil, all such things ought to make life cheaper for the mass. But they don't.

The American Legion, through its "Americanization Commission," recommends a fight against "the present unrest." An excellent recommendation. The question is: "How will you fight unrest?"

To stop "unrest," fight whatever makes men restless and dissatisfied. The cause, not the symptom, is dangerous.

For instance, when a soldier from France reads of "hard boiled" instructions to those that deal with him. Those who are considering his claims are told to use their eyes and ears, not their hearts. He remembers that a short time ago when he was shipped abroad to get shot there was much talk about the heart, no talk about anything "hard boiled."

"Is not your heart full of patriotism, eh?"

You can't make a man get over his restlessness or dissatisfaction by offering to Americanize him, or waving the American flag in his face.

To fight unrest, fight the causes of unrest. They are plentiful, from the latest Supreme Court decision, useful to big tax dodgers, to constantly increasing cost of food that mothers must buy for their children.

Allied troops are in Constantinople. A London editor "refers sarcastically to the absence of any United States forces."

The editor has no idea how much of that sarcasm the United States can stand.

It is better to have a London editor surprised instead of having it come from the ghost of George Washington. He would certainly be surprised to see United States forces menacing Turkey—especially as we allow our little neighbor Mexico, without interference, to give excellent miniature representations of the Turk in Armenia, with American citizens playing the part of Armenians.
